AMERICAN AMBASSADOR IN GRAVE ANTI-FASCIST RIOTS LENINGRAD AIR SMASH THROUGHOUT FRANCE

CRAWLS OUT OF WRECKAGE

SHAKEN BUT SAFE AND UNHURT

PILOT'S SKILL

Moscow, June 24.

Mr. William C. Bullitt, the American Ambassador to Russia, had a narrow escape from death in a plane crash at Leningrad to-day.

Actually, he escaped unhurt, thanks largely to the skill of his pilot who could not avoid the crash, but managed it as gently as possible.

The aeroplane carrying the American Ambassador was proceeding to Leningrad where Mr. Bullitt had arranged to meet his twelve-year-old daughter, Ann.

The crash occurred owing to sudden engine failure just as the plane was manoeuvring to land at the aerodrome in Leningrad this afternoon.

OVERTURNS IN A SWAMP.

It finally finished, overturned, in a swamp.

Mr. Bullitt and the pilot, an American airman, Lieutenant White, were both unhurt, and crawled from the wreckage grinning.

It was the Ambassador's personal plane in which he has many a series of trips to various parts of the U.S.S.R.—Reuter.

TIGER'S REFUGE IN AN OFFICE

VILLAGERS TAKE TO TREETOPS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received June 25, 1.15 a.m.)

Calcutta, June 24. Numerous deaths and enormous damage have accompanied widespread floods throughout Assam and Bengal, following torrential rains.

The situation is gravest in Upper Assam, which has been completely isolated by the floods. The torrential rains almost amounted to a cloudburst over the Khasi and Jaintia Hills and the water rushed down into the valleys below in great walls, carrying everything before them, causing widespread destruction of life and property.

The officer in charge of the Woods and Forest Department at Sylhet received a shock when he found a tiger sheltering from the flood disaster in his office.

Many villages in Upper Assam are completely submerged and the villagers have taken refuge in the tops of trees.—Reuter Special.

PROBABLE TALK WITH HUANG FU

Shanghai, June 25. Chiang Kai-shek is leaving Nanking to-day for Hangchow where he will inspect the Central Aviation Academy.

It is highly probable that he will meet Huang Fu at Hangchow for a consultation. Huang Fu left Shanghai for Hangchow this morning, while Mr. Wang Chingwei arrived in Shanghai from Nanking.—Reuter.

EXCURSION ENDS IN TRAGEDY

HEAD-ON RAILWAY COLLISION

DISASTER NEAR PARIS

Paris, June 25.

Many were killed and injured in another serious railway accident near Paris late last night.

A head-on collision occurred between an excursionist train and a goods train near Lagarenne, about ten miles from Paris, and the passenger train was extensively damaged.

It was filled with excursionists who were on their way home in a local train on the Paris-Dieppe line, after watching the fireworks and illuminations in connection with the festivities that followed the Grand Prix.

Later.

The toll of life in the train disaster was not so serious as was at first feared.

Only two persons were killed outright and thirty others were seriously injured.

— SWIFT HELP.

The collision occurred right at the entrance to Noulles station and assistance was swiftly forthcoming.

The train left the Gare St. Lazare at 10.23 p.m. and was travelling on the lines of the State Railway.—Reuter.

Later.

It has now been ascertained that there were no deaths in the train collision, although the driver and the fireman of the excursionist train severely injured, are still pinned under the wreckage.

Forty persons were slightly injured.—Reuter.

UPWARD TREND OF DOLLAR

STRONG SUPPORT FOR SILVER

The Hongkong dollar rose 1/4th this morning to 1s. 5 1/4d., which is the highest rate since the middle of April. Inter-bank business has been done this morning as high as 1s. 5 1/4d.

The market locally is very firm, with expectations of a further rise in the dollar rate.

Silver is strong in London, due to the belief that the United States is now embarking on an extensive buying policy.

Another factor inducing an upward trend in the dollar is that speculators in Shanghai are selling sterling.

BRITAIN WANTS 22 MORE CRUISERS

DEMAND IN NAVAL CONVERSATIONS

AMERICA URGES POSTPONEMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received June 25, 7.45 a.m.)

Washington, June 24. American opinion that a 1935 naval conference would be a disastrous failure appears to be crystallised in influential quarters.

It is alleged that Britain is demanding a huge increase in the number of cruisers allotted her for policing Empire trade routes.

Japan demands parity and nothing short of parity.

European political manoeuvring now threatens to become an important factor, with Russia and France linked up together on the one side and Germany and Italy on the other.

HUBBARD INTERVIEW.

Mr. Nathaniel Hubbard, the retiring President of the American Navy League, in an exclusive interview to-day with the United Press, declared: "Neither political nor economic conditions at the present time favour the holding of the 1935 naval conference."

"The objectives of every naval power, with the exception of the United States, is to increase instead of decrease their national naval defence."

"In the interest of world peace and the future of naval armaments limitations, it is hoped that the preliminary conversations recently opened in London may develop into such a situation that it will induce the naval powers to effect an adjournment of the 1935 naval conference to a more propitious time."

STATUS QUO.

"In the meantime," said Mr. Hubbard, "the nations would have to agree upon maintaining the status quo under the Washington and London Treaties."

It is pointed out that the 1935 Naval Conference was arranged five years ago, when it was impossible to foresee either the world trade collapse or the political stresses of the present day. Postponement in the circumstances, especially as it can be foreseen that an agreement without all-round increases is impossible, is the obvious course.

BRITISH CRUISER NEEDS.

Mr. Hubbard disclosed that the British Admiralty is making a claim for an increase in the number of first-class cruisers allotted to her from 50 to 72, this latter figure being submitted as the minimum necessary for adequately carrying out the tasks of the British Navy.

This demand, said Mr. Hubbard, together with the Japanese parity demand, and the French and Italian battleship and battle cruiser construction programmes eliminate the possibility of substantial sacrifices.

NEW PROBLEMS.

He also foreshadowed a French demand for Russian participation in the 1935 conference and an Italian demand for German participation, both of which would increase the obvious difficulties.

Private Norman Smith, of the Lincoln, was sentenced to 28 days at a court-martial at Shamshuipo, where he was charged with being found asleep while on duty as a sentry of the New Magazine Guard. The sentence was confirmed and suspended.

DONOGHUE WINS GRAND PRIX

RIDES ADMIRAL DRAKE TO VICTORY

EASTON BEATEN INTO THIRD PLACE

Paris, June 24.

Steve Donoghue, veteran jockey of the English Turf, rode M. Leon Volterra's Admiral Drake to victory in the French Grand Prix to-day.

Race-goers were undisturbed by the serious riots of Saturday and there was an enormous crowd at Longchamps racecourse to see the race, the French counterpart of the Derby.

Admiral Drake's victory was a brilliant performance, although it was hardly expected as the horse finished last in the Epsom Derby.

He proved his ability to stay, however, and over the longer distance (the Grand Prix is over 1 mile, 7 furlongs) he came through with a rush and won comfortably.

EASTON THIRD.

Foulabin was second, and Lord Woolavington's Easton, ridden by Gordon Richards, which finished second in the Two Thousand Guineas and second in the Derby, occupied third place to-day.

Seventeen ran. Admiral Drake won by a length and a half, the same distance separating second and third.

The pari-mutuel betting to a five-franc stake was: Admiral Drake, Fr. 29.50 win; Fr. 24.50 place; Foulabin, Fr. 53.50 place; Easton, Fr. 19.50 place.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S BID FOR PEACE WITH U.S.

CONVERSATIONS IN WASHINGTON

SAITO VISITING TOKYO

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received June 25, 7.35 a.m.)

Washington, June 24. The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Saito, is leaving for Tokyo on Tuesday.

It is understood that he will spend the entire summer in Japan, planning a "come-back" for friendship between Japan and the United States.

It is expected that he will have consultations with Mr. Hirota, Foreign Minister, and Prince Saionji, and possibly with the Emperor.

Mr. Saito has been giving a close study to the Washington situation in the last month and has had several long talks with Mr. Cordell Hull and President Roosevelt.

SOUNDING OPINIONS.

It is understood that he has been informally sounding opinion regarding possible Japanese proposals for cementing good relations, including, firstly, a non-aggression pact, secondly, a declaration of goodwill and non-competition based upon some sort of trade understanding, and thirdly, a settlement in regard to the status of Manchukuo, the independence of the Philippines and relations with China.

It is felt that if political problems are adjusted, the naval rivalry will adjust itself almost automatically.

U.S. NON-COMMITTAL.

American officials, however, have given no hint of their attitude. They appear to have done nothing more than listen to what Mr. Saito has had to say.

It appears that they believe that Japan must offer something feasible and concrete—and especially something which will prove satisfactory to all nations with interests in the Far East.—United Press.

LORIENT BATTLE

FURIOUS MOB CHARGES MOUNTED POLICE

SITUATION OUT OF CONTROL

Paris, June 24.

Increasing tension between the Fascist organisations and the anti-Fascists in France was illustrated by a series of riots during the week-end in various parts of France.

In nearly every case, the disturbances were the result of attempts to break up meetings organised by the Fascist groups and many heads were split in clashes with the police.

The most serious of a score of riotous episodes occurred at Lorient, one of the coast ports in Brittany, where over a hundred were seriously injured in a wild day of fighting.

PITCHED BATTLE.

Most of the casualties occurred in a pitched battle between a mob, numbering well over two thousand, and the mounted police. The mob reversed the usual roles and charged the police, attacking them with poles, stones and bottles.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed in the ensuing battle. Cafe chairs were seized and smashed over the heads of opponents and when the fire brigade's assistance was sought in an effort to damp the ardour of the mob, the crowd ripped the hoses to shreds.

CINEMA WRECKED.

They then invaded a cinema where the Croix de Feu, an ex-Servicemen's organisation with Fascist tendencies, was holding a meeting and brought the gathering to an abrupt termination. The cinema was completely wrecked when the combatants had been dispersed.

A prominent Trades Unionist was arrested brandishing a sword which he had seized from a wounded lieutenant of the Guards Mobile.

One policeman had his eye gouged out and twenty-eight other policemen were seriously injured.—Reuter.

SHE knew the minute she met him that he was the man of her dreams. But he did not seem attracted to her. It was her own brother who guessed what was wrong. "Stop using a lipstick that makes you look painted," he said. Then she switched to Tangee. It can't make lips look painted... it isn't paint.

LOOKS ORANGE—ACTS ROSE

In the stick Tangee looks orange. But put it on and you'll see it change on your lips to the natural shade of rose most becoming to you. Instead of a greasy coating, Tangee becomes a very part of you. Hence is longer-lasting than ordinary "paint" lipsticks. Tangee's special cream base softens and softens, prevents lips from drying or chapping. Also in Theatrical, a deeper shade for professional use.

UNTOUCHED—Lips left untouched are apt to have a faded look... make the face smolder.

PAINTED—Don't risk that painted look. It's coarsening and men don't like it.

TANGEE—Intensifies natural color, restores youthful appeal, ends that painted look.

Tangee Cream Rouge is really waterproof. Will not streak or wash away, ideal for sports use. Its cream base protects your skin against drying or chapping. Match Tangee Lipstick and like it changes to your individual coloring.

THE newest printed silks for summer were presented at a style show held at New York's Central Park Casino. The history of silk—from silk-worm to finished fabric—inspired the printed motifs.

In the photograph above, centre, Miss Marian Stehlik, noted designer, drapes yards and yards of fabric about the model's figure to form a daytime dress. The printed material, an all-over design in a silk worm pattern—is of white dots on a dark background.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Let Growing Boys Have Fun

By Olive Roberts Barton

A mother came to me about her sixteen-year-old boy.

She complained of many things. He was lazy, wouldn't study as he should, fought with his sister. The entire indictment was just about the same as any other sixteen-year-old I ever knew except a few of the prodigies one runs into now and then.

And the summary of the case was the same, too. "He used to be such a fine boy. He always was so sweet and lovable and took such an interest in everything."

Where had I heard that before? "Growing pains!" I answered. But she had heard that one too.

So we were just back where we started.

"Does he do anything?" I inquired. "Right?"

"Oh, yes. When he doesn't forget."

"What does he do?"

"Well, he likes to play ball. He's the best pitcher on the team."

"Anything at home? Any little things?"

"He's good at fixing. He can paint well. He did over the porch willow, the chairs and swing, with cream enamel. They look like new. No, I hadn't any trouble about that. He loves to paint. Yes, he whistled all the time he was working."

Dutiful at Home

And the list grew. The electric machines were kept in order. He didn't mind beating rugs either, but roared like a lion if his chores kept him home when he wanted to do something else. The big trouble was to get him started. He always had something else on hand and to catch him and hold him was almost impossible.

"I don't worry so much about now," she said, "as about the future. I'm afraid he'll grow up shiftless and careless and not be able to stick at anything. I talk to him until I am tired, but it only makes him worse."

"I'm going to ask something personal. Do you run bills?"

"Why, yes. Of course. Everybody does."

"Then you know what credit means. The stores give you credit. That means they have some faith in you even though you may not always be able to settle each account promptly on the tenth."

"Couldn't you give Charlie credit? It seems to me he does a good bit, but for all that no one extends him an account, and he probably realizes it. Everything he doesn't do is noticed but what he does do goes by the board and is accepted so casually he has gotten a bit resentful."

Reason He Rebels

"Oh, but we do give him credit. I always praise him for everything."

"I'm sure you do. But in spite of it all your worry creeps through. He knows his mistakes count more with you than his good marks. And the reason he fights his sister is that he thinks she feels the same way and that you two are in league against him, which you probably are, although you do not realize it."

"He likes to use his hands. He will outgrow that to some extent but I hope not too much. When his 'growing pains' stop he will concentrate more easily. More things will interest him. Let him know that you approve of him. He'll react more quickly, because you will have more influence. It takes time and patience, and some fun. Don't forget the fun. He'll stay home more. A good-time Charlie of this sort won't be so lazy and sullen. He'll probably surprise you."

CHAPTER XXXIV

"Miss Gray to see you." The automatic announcer on Tom Weaver's desk parroted the words and Tom, frowning, said, "Let her come in."

The girl who presently appeared on the threshold was dazzling in her morning freshness. Her gold-and-white, rather flashy good looks were admirably set off by a brown tailored suit, faultlessly cut. The gunmetal hat of gleaming brown straw was worn at a perilous angle. Vera, Tom reflected, had always known how to wear clothes. She was the type that young men still artlessly describe as a "knockout."

"Good morning!" She settled herself in the one comfortable chair in the cubicle and smiled at him brilliantly.

"I didn't know you were back," Tom said. "Cigarette?" She accepted one and lit it gracefully. Everything this girl did was studied.

"Got that bird Varick at last," she said with a satisfied smile.

"You did?" Tom showed interest. "You all said I couldn't. Even Mr. Lawrence said I couldn't. But I did!" Her white teeth flashed in triumph.

"Well, he's always been a hard nut. Hard man to see," Tom said reflectively. "Vamped him, eh?"

"I wouldn't say that." Her silvery laugh tinkled in modesty. "Lawrence'll be pleased." Tom swerved in his chair, staring out over the roof.

"You should have had that account, Tommy!" Her voice took on warmer notes and she laid a hand on his sleeve.

"Oh, rot, it's your business! Glad to see a young girl get along." He grinned at her.

"Wasn't it the funniest thing?" she asked with relish. "My walking in here that day and Mr. Lawrence remembering me back at the Boston office and asking how I'd like to try my hand at the New York work?"

"Certainly was!" Tom's voice sounded enthusiastic enough but there were little lines around his eyes. He looked tired.

"And I was just mad to come down, of course. Who wouldn't be?" Vera demanded. "It was the chance of a lifetime."

"Well, you're making good."

Who says you're not?" Tom spoke heartily.

"I love it here. . . . Vera stripped off her gloves, rising. "I've got to get some letters off. I suppose you're going downstairs to lunch at about one?"

The young man showed signs of embarrassment. "Matter of fact, I'm not," he told her. "I've got to see a man uptown and I'm grabbing a sandwich. Besides I'm keeping in close touch with the house."

"Something wrong?" She lifted her eyebrows delicately.

"Gypsy's father," he explained. "Auto accident. He's in a bad way."

"Oh, too bad!" She was reddening her lips now. The tone was perfunctory.

"I'm all cut up about it," Tom stated with finality. "Very fond of Mr. Morell. He's a one grand guy. And of course Gypsy's frightfully upset."

"Mmm. . . I can imagine." She stood irresolute in the doorway and he made no move to detain her.

"Well, I'll be seeing you."

But after she had gone, leaving a faint, inescapable trace of scent on the air, he put his head in his hands and groaned a little. Gypsy and Vera! Gypsy and Vera! Oil and water, these two natures were.

He liked the girl—couldn't help admiring her enterprise. She was a smart business woman and awfully feminine in the bargain.

He'd been hoping she'd go back to Boston but she had told Lawrence she didn't want to—so that was that! When she had come into the office a few months ago their old friendship had renewed itself.

Hang it all, a man couldn't be a blooming prig! He couldn't say to a girl he'd known so long, "I'm terribly sorry but I'm married now. I can't pass the time of day with you any more."

No, he couldn't do that! And at first he had been afraid to mention to Gypsy the fact that Lawrence (taken with Vera's good looks) had given her a job in the same office. Gypsy would have been suspicious. Women were funny that way. Well, he hadn't mentioned the matter and Vera had helped him to land that silk stocking account. He had had to see her out of hours; they had both entertained the space buyers. Why hadn't he told Gypsy then? He couldn't exactly explain. Was it possible he had enjoyed Vera's society as a woman rather than a co-worker? Damn it, she was attractive; she was good fun. Gypsy had been ten times more amusing, more delightful, but that was, in the early days, the pre-David days.

It seemed a pity, motherhood had to take such a grip on some women, Tom reflected, stuffing his pipe. David was important, of course. He was the son and heir, an adorable scrap of babyhood. But Gypsy had altered so since his arrival. She didn't want to do things, go places any more. Men weren't used to being tied to a house. They were broken in to the routine of matrimony much less easily than girls.

He thought of Gypsy's white, stricken face as he had left her that morning and almost groaned aloud! His girl, little and slim and adorable; what was she doing now? What particular hell was she going through?

He reached for the telephone. Miles away, across a river, up a line of hills, in a shabby mansarded house a bell tinkled and Clytie's voice came through. "Miss Weaver? He just the same."

A wait and then Gypsy's faint hello. "We're waiting. The doctors are both here."

Tom reached for his hat and slammed out of the office. The "man uptown" of whom he had spoken to Vera was more or less fictional. There were several people he had to see but none of the calls were urgent.

Vera was in the outer office as he whirled through, talking to the switchboard girl. At sight of Tom she said, "Don't forget. Tell him I'll be in at three," and tripped after Tom.

"Going up now?" He grinned at her. She was as tall as he. "Far as Seventy-second street."

"I'm going as far as Times Square," she said, lightly. "I'll trail along if you don't mind."

"O. K., lady."

She tucked her bag under one tailored arm and tripped along beside him, her high heels clicking. Tom was conscious of admiring glances as they threaded the noon-day crowds. No doubt about it, she was a good-looking girl. Funny she hadn't married. Of course she was always raving about a career but Tom had noticed that other girls who talked the same way plunged headlong into marriage when the fancy took them. And Vera had lots of beaux. There was always some Johnny on the telephone asking her to dance and dine and what-not.

They had to walk two blocks to the hooded subway entrance, jostling people as they went and dodging taxis at the intersections. The ride uptown, with the swaying cars hurling themselves forward at breakneck speed through the tunnels, made conversation impossible. Just before the Times Square station was reached the girl touched his arm lightly and said, "Get out here with me, Tommy, and have a chocolate malted. It will only take a sec. I particularly want to ask you something."

It would have seemed churlish to refuse. He could have his soda fountain drink; he could go on uptown without feeling giddy. It was a matter of business—Vera was always demanding his advice. Gypsy, far away and in trouble, would neither know nor be hurt.

They climbed on twin stools at a gleaming white and chromium counter. All about them was the paraphernalia of the modern drug store, the books, alarm clocks, costumed dolls rubber goods and nosegays of lollipops which form the background for one lone, lost counter where chemists ply their trade.

"What I want to know," Vera demanded gayly after a white-coated youth had taken their order, "what I want to know is what have I done to make you mad at me? Why don't you like me any more?"

"Me?" Tom stared. "You're crazy, girl. I think you're a whiz." Her curved smile had a tinge of wistfulness. "That sounds good," she told him, "but you haven't been a bit friendly lately. You've been—well, just horrid."

"What is all this about?" Tom took a sip of ice water and tried to make his humour hearty.

"I must have done something—said something," Vera offered plaintively. "I wish you'd tell me. I'm so fearfully hurt about it."

"Maybe I'm crazy," Tom said good-naturedly. "I don't know what you're driving at. I'm not mad at you. You haven't done anything to annoy me, and shall we talk about something else?"

Her eyes were dewy. "Sure, Tommy?"

"Absolutely!"

"I'm so terribly glad," she whispered softly. "Because you know what it's always meant to me, having you about, don't you, Tommy?"

The man's heart sank. What was he letting himself in for now? (To be continued.)

CONSERVATIVES RETAIN TWICKENHAM

London, June 22.

The Conservative Party yesterday retained the Twickenham Parliamentary seat by 5,606 votes as against 4,807 votes at the last general election. The by-election was caused by the death of Mr. H. R. Murray Phillipson.

The polling was as follows: Brigadier-General A. C. Critchley, Conservative, 25,395 votes.

Mr. Holman, Labour, 19,890 votes.

LAI TO REST

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL OF MICHAEL PAINE

Touching scenes were witnessed at the funeral of little Michael Paine, only son of Master Gunner Paine, Royal Artillery, and Mrs. Paine, which was held at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and sympathisers. The Rev. N. V. Halward, M.C., M.A., Pastor of the Kowloon Tong Anglican Church, officiated at the graveside.

Michael Paine met his death in tragic circumstances on Friday afternoon, as the result of the extraordinary action of a Chinese, now under detention, who ran amuck soon after the heavy rain, and threw five children, one of whom was the deceased's twin sister, into the nullah beside the lower Peak Tramway Station.

A large number of friends followed the hearse to the Cemetery gates, from whence the coffin was carried to the graveside by Master Gunner Wardle, Sharp, Timms and Longman.

After the burial service had been read the deceased's father took a handkerchief containing toy soldiers, the favourite playthings of the child, and placed these on the coffin. Mrs. Paine was also present at the graveside.

Others present included Mr. and Mrs. Medina, Captain P. S. Cannon, A.E.C., Captain E. Hague, R. A. and Mrs. Hague, M.G.R. Manley, S/Sgt. and Mrs. Henderson, C. Q. M. CULT OF FASHION

STRONG DENUNCIATION BY CATHOLIC PRIEST

In a sermon remarkable for its outspokenness, delivered at the nine o'clock Mass at Rosary Church, yesterday, the Rev. Fr. H. De Angelis, of the Italian Mission, roundly denounced the modern tendency in prevailing feminine fashion. The condemnation extended to tennis and beach shorts, as well as high split skirts, as he wished the respective advantages of maidenly reserve and modesty with a blatant display of sex charms evident in some women.

The Church was filled to capacity with a congregation, the majority of whom were women.

The Rosary Church is one, which has always taken a strong view on the subject, and on a previous occasion, a notice was posted up forbidding women who were not decorously dressed from entering.

"It is said," Fr. De Angelis began, "that priests are not in a position to speak on subjects like cinema, theatre, cabarets, and so on, because they know nothing about these."

"There is one subject on the moral side, however, of which I should like to speak to you this morning, and of which I have confidence no one can say they are ignorant, for the very simple reason that we also have our eyes to see it as others do."

"The subject is modern women and how they are dressed."

The question presupposes itself: What should be the adornments of women? And we find the answer in the first letter of St. Peter: "Whoso adorning, let it not be the outward adorning of plaiting of the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is rich in the sight of God."

Profaning the Body.

"The purpose of dress is twofold: to protect the body and to ornament it. But nowadays some women (and this morning I speak to you, and not you) some women have perverted the use of dress, so that, instead of protecting and ornamenting the body, they undress and profane it."

"There was a time when women attracted the attention and admiration of the populace by a certain style of dress, but now it seems the surest way of making a woman—no matter whether she is old or young—popular is to abbreviate her dress, or the lack of dress altogether."

"The way some women dress nowadays induces only dishonourable love. As a matter of fact, it is wrong to call it love at all."

"It is not love. It is passion, more passion, sex passion. It implies no honest purpose, no idea whatever of true affection."

"Man may use the half-dressed woman as a toy, but he will never love her. He will amuse himself with her, but he will not marry her, ordinarily; and if he does, the marriage will not last longer than a few weeks."

"As a rule, a marriage resulting from the admiration of a certain style of dress is a matter of lust and brutal instinct. And lust is cruel, and when it is too late, the woman will realise it and will pay a life-long penalty."

Man's Nature.

"Man has a twofold nature: the animal nature and the spiritual nature."

"An indecently dressed woman, no matter where she be, on the tennis court, on the bathing beach, or in a dancing party, may compel that admiration which is only the animal part of his nature, and not the spiritual."

"A naturally decent woman does not desire the admiration that comes from sacrificing her modesty; and a naturally decent man does not want to associate with a woman who does."

"A woman of intelligence and taste does not seek popularity by a vulgar display of her flesh, by showing her knees, or by a scantiness of attire; and if he does all this, she reveals what she really is, a creature given over to the will of the flesh, and let me speak frankly, to bestiality."

"Be not surprised if I speak in the way I have done. A Catholic preacher does not fear criticism just because what he preaches runs counter to public opinion, or may incite anonymous correspondence that is fit only to be thrown into the waste-paper basket or be discussed as a delicious tit-bit at roasting man-longg parties."

"Without any fear, it may be said that a woman who dresses immodestly becomes a pliable instrument in the hands of the Devil. She does his work. She helps him to pull down man to an ignominious and base level."

"Pair of Short Pants."

"A woman who indulges in such licence, tramples underfoot the promises of baptism. Is that the way of renouncing the devil and all his work, and all his pomps?"

"For a pair of short pants or for a high split skirt she is ready to fall on her knees before the Infernal Serpent of whom she is the right hand in the work of dissolution and further destruction."

"The modern woman is a slave of fashion. She is made a caricature, a toy. Fashion is her queen. Fashion demands, and she obeys, and even obeys so blindly that if fashion in the near future will demand it, we shall see all modern women going along the street with a broom in the right hand."

"A woman who dresses herself in the style that appeals to the baser male instincts can do much mischief and is more powerful than a fully-equipped army."

SYDNEY BRIDE

SATURDAY'S WEDDING AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Wearing a beautiful ivory satin gown created by "Rovue" of Sydney, Miss Masie Gertrude Martin, eldest daughter of the late Mr. W. G. Martin and Mrs. M. A. Martin, late of Sydney and the Philippines Islands, was married on Saturday at St. Andrew's Church to Mr. Herbert William B. Musket, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Musket of Hongkong. The Rev. J. R. Higgs officiated at the ceremony while appropriate music was rendered on the organ by Mr. Rupert Baldwin.

The bridegroom, who is brother to Mrs. J. R. Sutter, is attached to the office staff of the Hongkong Electric Co.

The bride was given away by Mr. J. R. Way of the Hongkong Electric and looked charming in her ivory satin gown cut on classic lines, set off with a cut tulle veil. She carried a bridal sheaf of tangerine-tinted gladioli.

Silver and eau-de-nil were the two shades combined in the frocks of Jane and tulle worn by the four bridesmaids, the Misses Isabel Pestonji (chief bridesmaid), Ina Buchanan, Jean Ewing and Laurence Clemon. They carried bouquets of pink carnations, supplied by "Myrtle" Mrs. J. R. Sutter was Matron of Honour while the duties of best man were undertaken by Mr. H. S. Jones of the Hongkong Electric. The bride's mother wore a gown of black wind-swept satin and set off with a large black picture hat.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at 254, Prince Edward Road, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Sutter. After the usual toast and best wishes, the happy couple left for their honeymoon, which is to be spent in Canton.

UNION CHURCH CEREMONY.

Popular China Electric Official Marries Former H.K. Nurse.

A wedding of interest was celebrated quietly at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, on Saturday morning, when Miss Elizabeth Alcock, formerly a nursing sister at the Kowloon Hospital, was married to Mr. Norman Ellis, who is a member of the staff of the China Light and Power Co., Kowloon.

Although the bride and the bridegroom are both quite well-known in Hongkong, they managed to keep the date and time of the ceremony a secret from their many friends. The bride arrived from home on the Blue Funnel liner Patroclus on Friday.

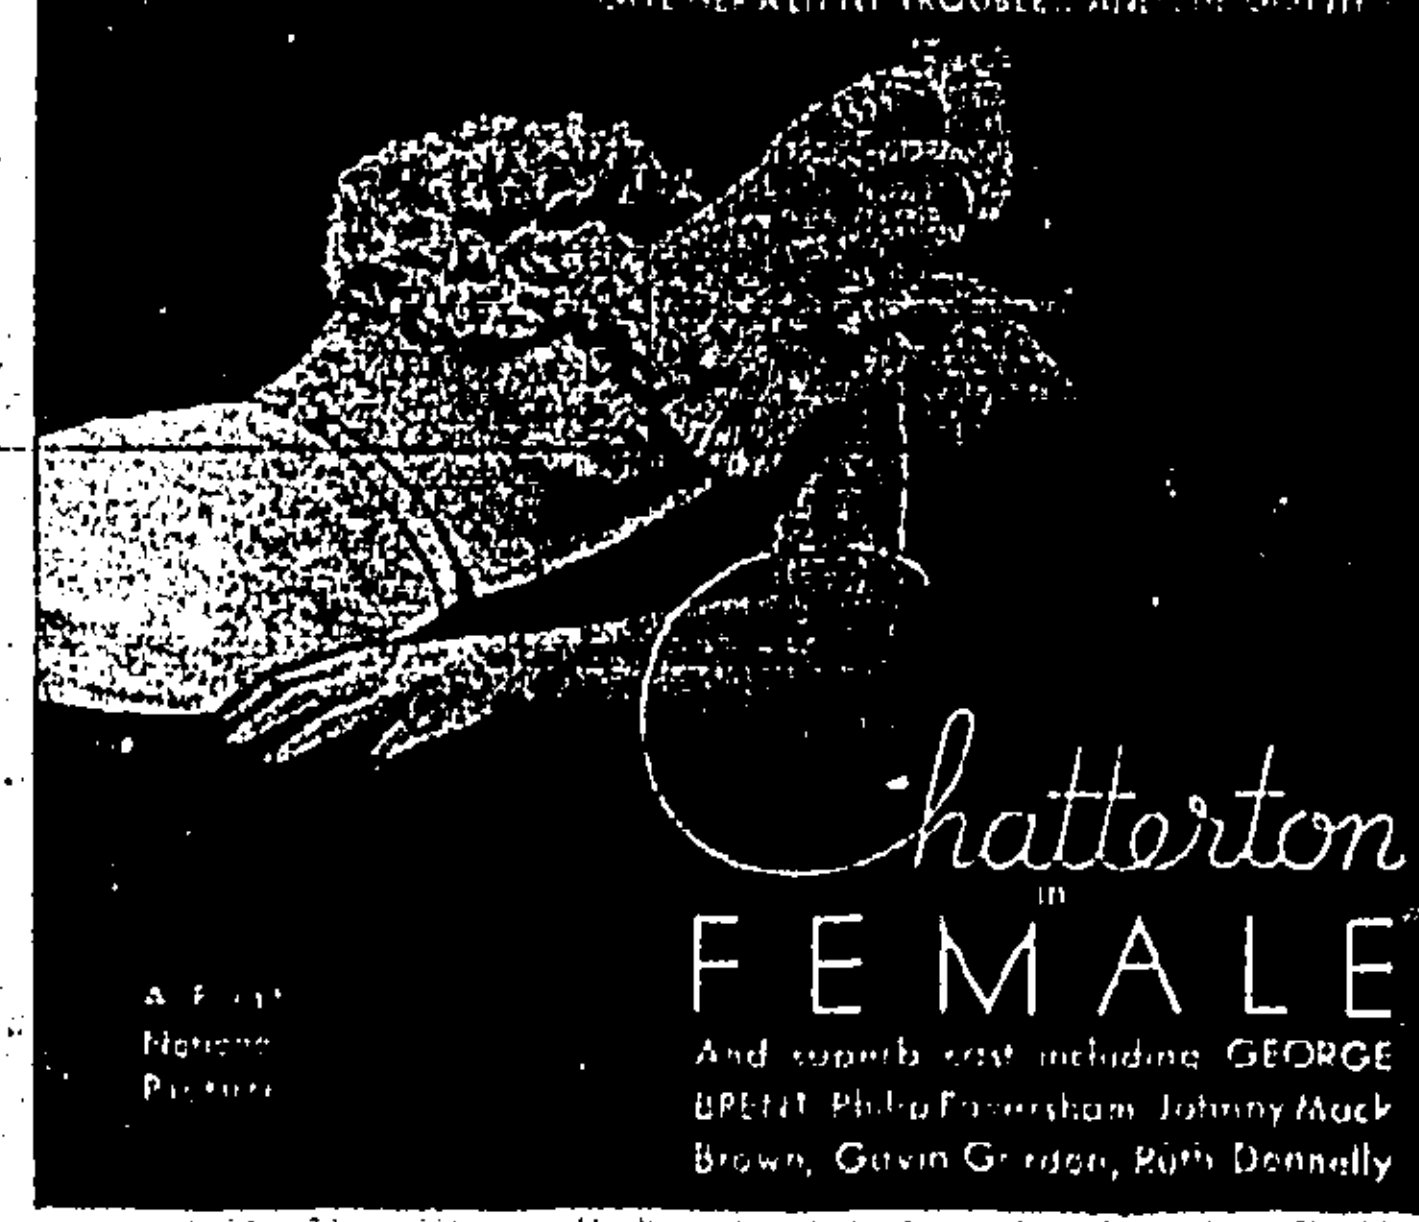

The bride wore a charming dress of beige silk, covered with a coat of nigger brown. She wore a chic nigger brown straw hat to match.

The duties of best man were undertaken by Mr. J. C. Gill. Mesdames E.G. Powell and E.C. Clamo were Matrons of Honour, the former attired in a blue silk dress and black straw hat and the latter in a salmon-pink and black ensemble.

The happy couple later left for their honeymoon, which is being spent at Repulse Bay Hotel.

AID FOR BRITISH SHIPPING

The question of Government assistance for British shipping is one which is being followed with deep interest here in Hongkong by reason of the hope that it may be possible to evolve some scheme which will lead to better times for an industry which has been badly hit by the depression. There is prospect of an international conference of the principal maritime nations, to consider laying-up schemes and other proposals. In the meantime, it is interesting to note that opposition to any organised laying-up scheme has been voiced by the British Mercantile Marine Service Association, which holds the view that such a method of handling the problem may prove injurious rather than otherwise to British interests. The suggestion on which the Association bases its opposition is that the Governments of the countries who become party to the scheme should pay shipowners a bounty for the tonnage they lay up, and that 25 per cent. of the British tonnage should be temporarily disposed of in this way. Objection to this plan rests on the belief that only a portion of the world's maritime countries would adopt it, and that any effort along these lines to create an artificial shortage and force up freights would only be the signal for those outside the agreement to bring out their laid-up ships. There is the further contention that the move would put Britain on a par with certain countries whose merchant fleets have grown enormously by the purchase of obsolete tonnage, much of which is at present idle. Certain countries can even now show an augmented service, even with 25 per cent. or more out of action, while Britain has experienced a big decline since the war. The Association does not object to British action by means of subsidies to protect its shipping, but it is suspicious of international arrangements which may do more harm than good to British interests. The whole problem is, of course, one of considerable complexity, but in the last resort better days for the industry must depend on trade expansion.

NOTES OF THE DAY

SILVER IN AMERICA

General business conditions in the United States in the last three months have not been so good as they were and further summer slackness is anticipated, the horizon being far from clear. Even the devastating drought in the Middle West has not stimulated wheat prices to the extent that might reasonably have been expected. In these circumstances, hints are being dropped that the Silver Act may prove to be something quite different from the innocuous time-gaining measure it was at first supposed to be, and that there is a direct connection between the silver act and the general commodity prices by use of the silver lever and steady buying in many markets is readily admitted. How far this policy is to be pursued is not clear. But it is not unimportant that it has been embarked upon and the best guess is probably that the preliminary results are being made the subject of a close study. The findings may be marked by intensification of buying or the calling of a halt. Time alone can show.

SIGNIFICANT

The rapidity with which the Silver Act has been followed up has surprised most interested quarters though there is no reason why it should have done. The jubilation of the silver advocates when the Silver Bill was drafted was most significant. Although authorisation of silver purchases was permissive, a promise was apparently extracted from the President that, in addition to the acceptance of the principle that gold reserves should be eked out with silver at the 75:25 ratio, he would at some time or other implement it. This of course was in line with the President's policy as announced at the World Conference last July. The Pittman resolution, authorised by the President, provided that central banks, instead of maintaining gold alone against their notes and deposits, agree that 80 per cent of the metal cover shall be in gold and 20 per cent shall be optionally in gold or silver. That meant little or nothing, except as an invitation to the world to buy silver and stick it in their vaults as backing for money. But it failed of agreement. Now the United States is apparently creating a precedent, without waiting for any agreement, or even without consulting other nations.

EXCESS RESERVES

Will the rest of the world follow suit? It is very doubtful. Modern nations have never shared the enthusiasm of the United States for silver. The question why they should go to the expense of adding to what they now regard as a superfluity of standard money. Certain Americans ask the same question. For the superfluity of standard money is more patent in the United States than elsewhere. It is notorious that never before in American history has there been so much idle money awaiting employment. Every week the Federal Reserve System makes public an item called "excess reserves," meaning the funds in the banks over and above those required for their deposit requirements. For months past this excess, which is available for loans up to more than ten times its amount, has been around $1,500,000,000. It is argued by opponents of silver purchases that Treasury buying of silver will simply increase this surplus without providing any means for using it.

COMPROMISE AGAIN

Immediate silver purchases are not likely to make much difference to business activity. In fact, they might make for some disturbance of confidence. It was in order to give investment confidence a chance to revive that the President, through his Secretary of the Treasury, pleaded a short while ago for a breathing spell from new monetary legislation. He has succumbed to a political agitation which has been without parallel in its driving force. Even Prof. Raymond Moley calls it "a most destructive and dangerous" agitation. But it gained an impetus from the President's own compromise. In December last he agreed to the purchase of all current production of silver in the United States at 64½ cents an ounce. The purchases, compared with current prices in the market, represented a bonus of 50 per cent. to the silver purchasers. Apparently the President imagined that the windfall would satisfy the silver advocates. But the agitation has prospered on what it has fed upon, and the December compromise has led the White House to another compromise, which promises to put into operation a silver programme in its most elaborate regalia.

THE GREAT DROUGHT

By F. W. THOMAS

AS the late Mark Antony said in one of his poignant election addresses: If you have tears prepare to shed them now. For this is very so-b-making and altogether glumish. And while you are at it you may as well weep over the carrots, for they want rain badly.

How sad it is to see the phlox, the catmint and the tender pink, with little tongues all hanging out and simply dying for a drink.

The hollyhock and candytuft, the spinach and the brussels sprout, are drooping in their little beds, all limp and lifeless through the drought.

As Mabel, the gardener, said to-day: "The beetroot and the columbine will soon begin to fade away unless we get a drop of rain."

"And look at them carnations, too, the larkspur and the cherry pie; you'd hardly think, although it's true, I've watered them three times to-day."

The water-butt is empty now—but this is not the time to talk. I think I'd better go and teach my little goldfish how to walk.

Extracts from the newspapers two months hence, if something doesn't soon happen:

TRAITOR!

Under the recently-passed Act for the Conservation of Water Mr. Theophilus Goodge was charged at Tisbury with secretly washing himself behind the ears.

Det.-Sgt. Bingle said that having hid himself in prisoner's dustbin he saw Goodge with a large bowl of water, actually putting his face in it, and slopping it about over his head. There was enough liquid in the bowl to have watered nineteen ears of corn for three days. (Sensation.)

Mr. Gollop, the magistrate, addressing prisoner, said that at a time of national crisis such as this any man who indulged in surreptitious and unnecessary ablutions was a traitor to his country.

Goodge, who offered no defence, was sent to prison for three months, and the court ordered his washing licence to be suspended for two years. Prisoner was hooted as he left the dock.

BOY'S HEROISM

At Poppleton Parish Hall last night Percival Potts, a local Boy Scout, was presented with a B-flute mouth-organ, subscribed for by a number of admirers as a mark of their appreciation of his bravery.

Unknown to his parents, Potts had put by his small weekly allowance of washing water in order to save the life of a pet petunia; the property of his grandmother.

In making the presentation the Mayor of Poppleton said—But you don't want to hear that. He always says the same thing. "It is such men as you, Mr. Potts, who have made England and all that sort of poppycock."

CHANNEL SWUM

Mrs. Euphemia Gurge, the well-known Channel swimmer, swum the well-known Channel last night. Owing to the water shortage she had to walk seven miles before she could get out of her depth. The swimming part of her journey took her just under half-an-hour.

To-morrow, if the present dry weather continues, she hopes to swim back in about ten minutes.

Mrs. Gurge, whose husband drives a watercart, but is now out of work, said she merely did it to get her name in the paper.

The Mayor of Wippleham, who accompanied the swimmer on the flite, said, "It is such men as you, Mrs. Gurge, who have made England and so on and so on."

STRANGE PHENOMENON IN THE WEST.

Last evening, shortly after seven, at Little Dunnington in Devon, there fell a most torrential shower which lasted nearly half an hour.

The rain came pouring from the clouds, attracting large and curious crowds; and people ran from house and cot, with jug and pail and gillpot, to gather up the glittering boon, with sponge and saucup, cup and spoon.

And every little weed and flower grew five feet high in half an hour, while children who had never seen a shower before said "What's it mean? Can this be what is known as mud? And will there be another flood?" In something under half a minute the village pond had water in it, and ducks who'd never learnt to swim stood stiff with fear upon the brim.

Interviewed by our local representative, Mr. Abel Issay, the oldest inhabitant, who can still eat without his glasses, said "Ay, that be rain all right. Man and boy I've lived in those parts for over two hundred years, and many's the time I've seed it coming down like billy-o and old boots."

"Wonderful stuff it is, too, but nothing like what we used to have in the good old days. Why, when I were a boy people used to wash in it. All over, some of 'em. And throw the water away afterwards. Yes, they did! And I'll fight anybody who says I'm a liar, in spite of my three hundred years."

"But the finest lot of rain I ever remember was a great old time ago; years and years and donkey's years. My giddy aunt, but her did rain then surely. Forty days and forty nights of it without stopping; and even the ducks got drowned."

"And there was an old gaffer lived up-along, feller named Nore; and he got soaked, and built himself a great old boat, and took his wife aboard, and all his pigs and horses, and—"

Unfortunately at this juncture Mr. Issay's mother came to put him to bed.

And talking of water—But here comes Maud Emil, very urgent, and accompanied by a "large culinary smell, and please, sir, what shall I do with this?"

"You see, sir, I was cooking something special for you, and I went upstairs to see if by sister was waiting outside for me, because she's going to take be to the pictures this afternoon, and we're going to see Adolph Mong-Joo, and I think it's simply lovely the way he crrrashes them to his shirt front before he kisses them, and when I got down stairs agate the thig I was cooking for you was all od fire, and it was something special, a dish of by own cremation, and now even the cat won't loog at it, so you'll have to do with the gold button instead."

The Very Idea!

JEEJEEBHOY GETS HOME

By George

"THE GOLDEN CANDAREEN."

SUDDENLY the silence of the night was dramatically broken. . . . You will remember folks that that was Wednesday night and Jeejeebhoy and Madge have been kept in suspense ever since.

So have we for that matter but we have decided that it is not fair to our readers to keep these two central figures of romance and mystery separated in our soul-stuffed serial any longer. So here's to it folks!

Madge drew herself up (you will remember that she was cross-legged in our last instalment) and heaved a sigh which shook her from stem to stern and burst her shoe laces.

At last, Jeejeebhoy was here! The shadow on the wall which had been behaving like a silhouette of a camel doubled up with gout became Jeejeebhoy's well-known profile.

It came nearer. It was real. So was the Peak but it didn't come nearer.

Jeejeebhoy braced himself up. He must make a good showing at this long looked for reunion. He must never let Madge have the slightest suspicion . . .

With a shriek of well-feigned delight he leaped clean over the verandah into Madge's open arms . . .

What happens to Jeejeebhoy when he leaps clean over the verandah into Madge's open arms? Does she drop him or does he fall short? We will tell you to-morrow whether Madge suspects that Jeejeebhoy has been unfaithful but in the meantime let us leave her reposing in the blissful trust of that great moment when Reginald shrieked. It seems that Jeejeebhoy is no nearer his demise than last week but we may find the amah poisoning him with pork and licks in our next issue in a fit of jealousy. In any case, folk, Jeejeebhoy has only three more instalments to go and then we shall have to leave him at his little desk in the P.W.D.

LESSONS IN JOURNALISM.

The Public

Of course the greatest authority on journalism is undoubtedly the man in the street who pays ten cents for a newspaper for the satisfaction of assuring himself that it contains all the news he already knows.

Journalism seems to be peculiarly unfortunate in that it does not attract the people who would make good at the profession by reason of their outstanding ability and natural forte for the work. Thus we find that none of the born journalists have anything to do with newspapers and that these are produced by a set of incompetent scribblers who cannot earn an existence in any other line.

The infallibility of newspapers has become almost a byword nowadays. People say: Well it's in the papers, so it must be true. That is all very well, but we wonder if the public ever realise to what measures we had to go to gain this reputation of integrity.

Have they heard of the reporter who inadvertently said that three instead of two men were shot, and was then instructed by the News Editor to go out and make the story correct?

Or the paper which, after being royally reprimanded for saying that a society leader had been seen walking through Soho at midnight, ran a series of specials proving that most society folk were either liars or somnambulists.

It is this spirit of enterprise which has got the newspaper on to the breakfast table of every healthy scandal seeker in the community, the reason being that the aforesaid reader can collect a whole lot of gossip without giving anything away himself.

Of course there are people who don't like newspapers but generally their main reason for saying so is to get their views published. And then there are people who go to great pains to tell the editor how passionately devoted they are to the paper—and generally they want something kept out!

"How do you suppose I feel when someone says mother and I look like sisters?"

ENGLAND'S WOMEN "HOPES" FOR WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON OPENS THIS AFTERNOON

Gathering Of World's Most Skilled Players

IS IT TO BE FRED PERRY'S YEAR? THE WOMEN'S TITLE

Wimbledon, the magnetic tennis meeting which brings the world's finest players together for nearly a fortnight, opens to-day, and bookings show that once again attendance records are likely to be shattered.

England, which has become just as much tennis-minded, as it is cricket-conscious, will flock to the All-England Lawn Tennis Club to revel in the encounters between the world's most skilled exponents of the game.

Last year they cheered a new champion when Jack Crawford of Australia beat Ellsworth Vines in a classic match. This year they hope to cheer even more vociferously, for it is generally felt that Fred Perry, England's greatest player since the days of Arthur Gore, and before him the Doherty brothers, is to make his supreme effort to win the blue ribbon of the court, and thus inscribe an Englishman's name on the roll of honour for the first time since 1909.

The critics have unanimously averred that this is Perry's year. Perry has done everything to substantiate the belief. During the past twelve months he has won the American and Australian championships, beating Crawford on both occasions, and played the leading part in the winning of the Davis Cup for Britain.

KEENER THAN EVER.

The competition, even without such personalities as Vines,

Cochet and Satoh, is keener than before. France is sending her young men, the future Cochet and Borotra; America will be represented by a magnificent team: Germany contributes Von Cramm, recent conqueror of Crawford in the French championship; Czechoslovakia has Menzel; Australia has Crawford and McGrath as chief banner-bearers.

The world's greatest tennis interest is lent by the fact that circumstances demand a new champion. Mrs. Wills Moody is unable to defend her title. Miss Helen Jacobs is her most likely successor, but British hopes are faithfully pinned on Miss Dorothy Round, Miss Scriven and other leading players.

The French and German challenge is powerful. Madame Mathieu has her place among the "seeded," and Fraulein Aussem, although not yet completely recovered from her illness of last year, is a dangerous opponent.

Wimbledon of 1934 is to be as glamorous as ever.

REWARD FOR BRIGHTER CRICKET GIVEN.

TOTE MADE £4,400,000 LAST YEAR

FIGURES REACH NEW RECORD

London. The report of the Racecourse Betting Control Board, covering the operation of the totalisator during 1933, has been presented to the Home Secretary.

The report will disclose a substantial improvement in the financial position of the board. During 1933 the turnover of the tote reached the record figure of £4,400,000, an increase of £400,000 as compared with 1932.

The machine is now, since the erection of totalisator buildings at Goodwood, in operation on every race course in the country except Doncaster; and it is believed that one will be erected there soon.

In addition to the services on race course proper, the board provide facilities at all the principal point-to-point and hunt meetings.

Litigation recently took place concerning the legality of the system under which bets are received on credit by agents and transmitted to the race course by them.

OFF-COURSE BETS.

Judgment on this issue was given in favour of the board, who intend to continue and develop this method of accepting bets.

This "off-course" business increased greatly in volume during 1933, and it now forms a large proportion of the tote wagers made.

The report for 1932 recorded a net profit, after payment of interest on borrowed capital, of only about £19,000.

It will be found that the accounts now about to be issued disclose not only a big increase of that figure, but also that the board have been able to clear off the deficit from previous years.

In addition to the development of their undertaking, the board have devoted much attention during recent months to necessary reorganization. Valuable economies in methods of working have been effected, and the removal of the administrative headquarters to less costly premises has been arranged.

FOUGHT TO KEEP A RECORD CLEAN

Shower Of Stones Repels Winning Team

Belgrade. The football team of Milosevatz, a small town in Yugoslavia, has never been beaten. This proud record is defended by every possible means. A hail of stones has just saved it from disaster.

The visiting team were winning 2-0. It looked as if the record was to be broken. But a penalty kick decision provided the home side with the opportunity for a diversion. They started a free fight.

They hurled huge stones from a handy pile at their opponents and with shouts of encouragement a crowd of home supporters joined them in the fight. Only the efforts of the police and some of the older citizens prevented the visiting team from suffering fatal losses. Several of them were seriously injured.

THE GOLF COURSES.

SIX HOLES FOR PLAY AT DEEP WATER BAY.

Col. E. D. Matthews, Secretary of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club announces that as a result of the conditions of the courses following last week's rains, the Happy Valley course will remain closed until at least Wednesday of this week, but that six holes at Deep Water Bay will be open this afternoon.

NEW ARSENAL MANAGER

Mr. Allison On His Plans

Mr. George F. Allison, the well-known commentator on sporting events for the B.C.C., has accepted the post of manager to Arsenal F.C., and takes over his new duties immediately.

Mr. Allison, who succeeds the late Mr. Herbert Chapman, is married and has a daughter of 16. He is a journalist and a director of newspaper and cinema-theatre companies. During his active football days he played full-back for the Casuals. He states that he does not propose to give up broadening and writing.

Associated with Middlesbrough F.C. in 1905 and 1906, Mr. Allison in the latter year came to London from Tees-side and became keenly interested in Arsenal.

PROGRESSIVE POLICY.

"I intend to continue the progressive policy of Arsenal," Mr. Allison said in an interview. "Regarding the payment of big fees we shall be guided by the contingencies of the moment, but Arsenal have a very high position to maintain and we intend to maintain it."

"I am happy in the knowledge that no man could be supported by a more loyal band of players and directors, and I am looking forward to an even more intimate association with the club as manager than before."

WORLD RECORDS

Five New Marks Set In U.S. Meeting

Los Angeles, June 23. In the National Collegiate Track and Field Meeting held here, John Lyman, of the University of Southern California, broke the world's putting record with a put of 53 ft. 7 1/2 ins.

The new record was made in the presence of 35,000 spectators.—Reuter. The previous world's record was held by Z. Helasz, of Poland, who established a mark of 52 ft. 7 1/2 ins. in 1932.

HARDIN'S ACHIEVEMENT.

Los Angeles, June 24. At the National Inter-Collegiate meeting here four more official world's records were bettered to-day. In the quarter mile, Hardin set a time of 47 secs.

In the 220 yards hurdles the same runner set a mark of 22.7 secs. In the mile, Bonthron required only 4 mins. 8.9 secs.

The fourth record fell in a field event when Torrence put the shot 54 feet 0.9/10 inches.—Reuter.

TENNIS PROGRAMME

LEAGUE MATCHES THIS WEEK

K.C.C. PAY VISIT TO C.R.C.

(By "Veritas").

Kowloon Cricket Club face their biggest proposition to date in the "A" Division of the tennis league to-morrow, when they visit Causeway Bay to engage the Chinese Recreation Club first string.

The C.R.C., undefeated as yet, are warm favourites for the retention of the title won last summer, and the K.C.C. will have to improve on some recent form if they are to boast the achievement of being the first team to lower the champions' colours this year.

The odds are in favour of the home team, who are decidedly better balanced. Much will depend on the success or failure of the Fincher combination, and whether Grose and Guest and Hyde and Rodger can hold their own.

A second match is being played on the same ground, the C.R.C.-second string engaging Craigengower. This fixture is of more than passing interest, and affords Craigengower a chance of showing their real worth.

Without Duff the Hongkong Cricket Club will find it hard to resist the challenge of the K.C.C., and will probably lose. South China seem to be safe for points from the U.S.R.C. The Recreation will only have to play normal tennis to overcome the C.R.C. third team.

THURSDAY'S GAME.

Thursday finds the C.R.C. and K.C.C. chafing again with a match between the "B" Division teams at Causeway Bay. The K.C.C. will be by the inclusion of Zimmerman. At their best the peninsula players have a reasonable chance of winning, but to date there has been an absence of steadiness sufficient to carry the day against such a team as the C.R.C.

University, Recreation and Graduates appear to be certain winners. Apart from the Recreation's match with the K.C.C., there is nothing very exciting promised in the "C" Division programme on Friday. This encounter will decide whether the Cricket Club are to have any continued interest in the destination of the championship. They are on their own courts, but they will have to play better than against the Kowloon Bowling Green if they are to take points from the doughty Recreation.

The full programme for the week follows.

S. A. CRICKET STAR'S SERIOUS INJURY.

Johannesburg. Fears that Bob Cottrell, South African international cricketer, may never be seen on the cricket field again, are entertained as a result of an accident which befell him while working underground. He is at present confined to the Springs Nursing Home.

Cottrell has had several mishaps recently, but his latest injury, sustained while at work underground, where he received a splinter below the kneecap, has been most serious and blood poisoning led to two operations on the knee. It is now feared that he will be left with a stiff leg.

MRS. WILSON DOUBTFUL STARTER

K.C.C. LINE-UP ANNOUNCED

TITLE RESTS ON RESULT

BODIKER WITH MISS GRIFFITHS

(By "Veritas").

Although it will not be known definitely until after tiffin whether Mrs. Wilson can play for the K.C.C. in the all-important mixed doubles league match against the U.S.R.C., this afternoon, the K.C.C. are confidently expecting that all will be well.

Mrs. Wilson is essential to the success of the K.C.C. and it is to be hoped that her slight indisposition will not prevent her from playing.

The K.C.C. have finally decided on the composition of the team, which is:

E. C. Fincher and Mrs. Wilson.

G. Bodiker and Miss Griffiths
A. E. P. Guest and Mrs. Miller

Bodiker put in some practice with his partner at the club yesterday, and as a combination they shaped well, giving rise to the belief that they may be capable of winning two sets.

Incidentally the K.C.C. very nearly lost Teddy Fincher for to-day. He offered himself for a blood transfusion yesterday, but was not called upon to make the sacrifice.

DECIDES CHAMPIONSHIP. This afternoon's match will decide whether the United Services won the mixed doubles championship outright, or whether the K.C.C. will be given a chance of challenging them in a replay for the title.

The Services require half a point for the honours. The K.C.C. must beat them and win their remaining games against the U.S.R.C. to ensure a final chance of winning the title.

The other match to-day is between the Chinese Recreation Club and Ladies R.C. A division of the spoils is likely, although the Chinese may just snatch a win, playing on their own courts.

HOW KENT AMASSED A RECORD SCORE

ALL DAY PACE OF 100 RUNS AN HOUR

ASHDOWN SMASHES COUNTY'S INDIVIDUAL RECORDS

Kent recently established a new record in first class cricket by piling up the huge score of 803 for 4 wickets declared against Essex. On the first day's play they actually scored 622 runs, and the following description of this achievement is given by Frank Thorogood in the News-Chronicle.

Runs flowed in mighty volume yesterday from the lordly bats of Kent. Four roared like a torrent down the clean-shaven grass, and at one period the distracted captain of Essex had serious thoughts of calling out the fire brigade.

When play closed and William Ashdown, still unbeaten, had made the highest score of his life with 307, Kent's gigantic total had exceeded by two runs the number registered against Essex at Tonbridge in 1922.

The day began with a partnership of 70 for the first wicket—and then came the deluge. Nothing, it seemed, but a good workmanlike hose could have driven Woolley and Ashdown out of their paradise, but the honour of breaking up a great alliance which produced 352 for the second wicket in a little over three hours fell to Claude Ashton.

Before Essex attained to first-class rank Brentwood had been their headquarters until round about the middle eighties; but yesterday marked the first match in the county championship ever played on that ground.

Well, the event has happened now with a vengeance, and no man can say that the Kent team are not encouraging Essex in their decision to leave Leyton and carry the old banner all round the county.

In the opinion of the Essex men, however, there is a limit to encouragement even when it comes from a neighbouring county, and it was rumoured last evening that the home captain would seek an injunction against Kent for exceeding the speed limit.

A TRAGEDY FOR ESSEX.

Woolley and Ashdown, feeling quite at home in a beautiful fenced and tree-girt meadow, scored at the rate of 100 runs per hour, and the tragedy for Essex was that Eastman could not bowl because of a damaged shoulder.

Apart from that handicap, however, Essex missed vital chances during the big partnership, and the first one, had it been accepted, would have turned the whole current of the game.

This occurred when Woolley, having scored two runs, was missed at deep square leg by Cutmore. Owing to the accident which he received when batting at Trent Bridge on the previous day, Cutmore wore a plaster just above the eyes, and his vision may have been conceivably impaired.

The full score was then 85, and the suffering bowler Raymond Smith.

Not long before ten, and in the course of two overs, Woolley, then in the 140's, offered unaccepted chances off Peter Smith to Nichols and Pope in the long field. Later on in the day Ames, with his score at 30, was missed by Eastman at extra mid-off.

To use the words of old Tom Emmett, there was an epidemic on the Brentwood ground, but it wasn't catching.

Employing every stroke on the board, and especially the late cut, which now and again resembled a chop, Woolley hit a 6 at the expense of Cutmore and twenty-one 4's. It was his second century of the season following 121 against Somerset and the 127th of his career.

Ashdown, who was born at Bromley, not only played a great innings mainly eloquent of the off-drive and the leg hit, but exceeded the biggest innings ever made for Kent.

Until yesterday Ames held that distinction with 295 against Gloucestershire at Folkestone last year; but

BOXER FALLS OUT OF THE RING

Jack Moody's Plunge To Floor After K.O.

Surprised by a pile-driving punch from his groggy opponent, Jack Moody, of West Bromwich, dropped on the boards of the Palais de Danse, Birmingham, last month, and rolled over and over until his head was over the edge of the ring staging.

A spectator grasped him momentarily—the action saved Moody from plunging head-first to the floor some feet below—but an angry shout, "Don't help him," caused the intervener to release his hold and Moody slithered down to the floor, where he lay still.

Moody was fighting Pat Butler, of Leicester. In the third round he felled the Leicester boy for a count of seven. When Butler staggered to his feet, Moody crashed him down again with a heavy right hook. The bell saved him.

Butler was awarded the decision on a technical knock out.

Results of other bouts were:—

Ten rounds: George Archer (Birmingham) defeated Jack Turvey (Birmingham); referee stopped fight in the second round. Harry Orton (Leicester) beat George Kirby (Birmingham) retired in the eighth round. Six rounds: Kid Paynton (Birmingham) k.o. Jim Cowdell (Smethwick), second round.

South China "B" eleven defeated a team from H.M.S. Phoenix by two goals to nil in a friendly football match at Caroline Hill on Saturday afternoon. South China's goal was scored by Tay Kwee-liang in the first half.

Ashdown did more by making the highest score ever put up by a Kent player the previous best being achieved by Frank Woolley—306 not out for the M.C.C. against Tasmania in the tour of 1911-12.

This was Ashdown's third century of the season and Ames reached his second in 80 minutes.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The two-way principle—a theory introduced to contract by P. Hal Sims—is one of the most valuable instruments of the game. It is well employed in today's hand, which was played recently by Paul de Vries of New York City.

When Mr. de Vries in the South bid a spade, and North bid three spades, North was telling his partner that the hand was safe at four spades. However, it gave South a chance to go to three no trump, if he desired.

Now when South elected to show a new feature of his hand with his bid of four hearts, he was really making a mild slam try. And when North bid five diamonds he was saying that the hand was safe at six, as he also had a new feature in his hand.

When South went to five no trump he was practically telling North that he held the king of clubs, because he was stating that there would be some advantage in having the hand led up to; therefore, he must have at least the king and x of clubs.

When North showed the ace of clubs with a bid of six clubs, and when South re-bid spades, North was justified in going to seven.

The Play

A spade opening might have defeated the contract. However, when the hand was played, the queen of clubs was opened, and Mr. de Vries in the South won with the king. South then led the ten of hearts and trumped in dummy with the deuce of spades.

A small spade was returned and won with the ace. The jack of hearts was led and trumped with the jack of spades. The seven of spades was returned. East discarded a club, and Mr. de Vries won with the king.

He then picked up the two outstanding spades and discarded two diamonds from dummy. East let go his two hearts.

Declarer then cashed ace and king of hearts, discarding a club and a diamond from dummy. On the last heart, East was squeezed. If he let go a diamond, all the declarer's diamonds would be good, so he dropped the ten of clubs.

Declarer then played the three of clubs and won in dummy with the ace, which caught East's jack.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Enchanting dances, brilliant modernistic settings of the old world cafes, the gay social whirl of Europe and the furor of early war fever in Paris thrilled are shown in "Bolero," George Raft's latest starring picture, at the King's Theatre. Based on the savage rhythms of Ravel's "Bolero," George Raft, Kubec Glasmon and Horace Jackson have constructed a well-nigh fool-proof plot which has been adeptly and convincingly developed by Director Wesley Ruggles. George Raft, who, to date has played enough "meat" roles, has been keeping something from his public. Few of any ball room dancers can equal his rhythmic technique and stage presence. His "Bolero" performance as the famous Raoul, idol of London and Paris, is superb. Then there's a really hand with that flamboyant fun which started half the world during the Chicago World's Fair and returned her to her first love, the movies. She has an exciting screen presence and is a competent actress. Carole Lombard, who wears silky gowns as no other blonde alien of the screen, reveals a technique equal to the other two. In two numbers she does with George Raft, "Bolero" and "Raftero," she introduces an entirely new Lombard, one we hope to see more often.

"Riptide"
Norma Shearer offers another of her magnetic and fascinating performances as a modern woman with ultra-modern ideals in "Riptide," her newest photoplay which opened yesterday at the Queen's. Lavishly produced, brilliantly enacted by its star and an impressive supporting cast and bearing the director's stamp of that ace director, Edmund Goulding, who also wrote the story, the new Shearer vehicle stands out as one of the finest productions to come from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. It provides an entertainment of distinction in every phase of motion picture artistry. As Lady Rexford, in this daringly triangular Continental romance, Miss Shearer is regally superb. Never has she appeared so beautifully photographed or handled as in this picture. Her performance is nothing less than magnificent even more superb than her "Divorcee," which won her the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award in 1929. With the customary flair attached to a Shearer film the star has provided with not one leading man but two. Robert Montgomery, enacts the play-boy friend and Herbert Marshall is seen as the more sober-minded husband. Each delivers a superb performance. Edmund Goulding performed gallant service as both author and director and achieves a screen product of unusual merit in entertainment values. There is all the box office in the world crowded into his story and development, with Miss Shearer's characterization giving both the women and men in the audience something to thrill about. Mrs. Patrick Campbell, noted British actress, heads the impressive supporting cast as the eccentric dowager. Other important roles are in capable hands such as the sterling players Skeets Gallagher, Ralph Forbes, Arthur Jarrett, Earl Oxford, Helen Jerome Eddy, George K. Arthur, Baby Marilyn Spinnert, Phyllis Cochran, Howard Chandler Christy and Halliwell Hobbes.

"Four Frightened People"

There is one watchman who will never again fall down on a job after the scare he got while working for Cecil B. DeMille in Hawaii, during the filming of his latest Paramount picture, "Four Frightened People," which comes on Thursday to the King's Theatre. A huge Malayesian hut, forty feet in height and weighing several thousand pounds, was erected in a jungle location for exterior scenes. Before the troupe, including Claudette Colbert, Herbert Marshall, Mary Boland and William Cagney, was discovered that filming would be almost impossible there due to almost incessant rainfall in that vicinity. DeMille ordered the bulky image moved to another and dryer location, which was accomplished during the hours that the watchman was sleeping. When it came to paying off all the native help at the end of the picture, the watchman failed to show up for his money. He was finally located, but refused to accept pay without a great deal of urging. "I have a confession to make," he said after he had pocketed

The nine of clubs was played and the declarer discarded his losing diamond.

The last two tricks were won with the ace and king of diamonds.

pay. "While I was looking around the jungle, your idol was stolen. I shall start out now and find the thief." DeMille is still waiting to hear if the watchman found the idol at the new location. "Four Frightened People" is from the novel of the same name by E. Armat-Robertson. It is the story of how four self-loving people have the veneer of civilization stripped from them when they are forced to fight for life and love in a dense, dangerous Malay jungle.

Ruth Chatterton will play a new and unusual role in her latest screen vehicle, "Female," which comes on Thursday to the Queen's. This glamorous star has had a long, unique and varied list of roles in her stage and screen career. But never before has she appeared in the guise in which "Female" will present her: an efficient big business executive at the office and a woman who has her own love code at night. It is a role peculiarly well adapted to a star who combines Miss Chatterton's gifts both as a dramatic actress and as a comedienne. The heroine of "Female" demands both elements. It is one of the most diverse roles which Miss Chatterton has played—hence, according to the star herself, one of the most satisfying. William Dieterle, director of the picture, has spun this daring story with great charm and delicacy. Its comedy is thrown into relief by emotional scenes of depth and intensity. A distinguished cast appears with Miss Chatterton in "Female." With George Brent as leading man, and such players as Ruth Donnelly, Lois Wilson, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Johnny Mack Brown in important roles, the star has splendid support. Others appearing in the picture are Jean Muir, Gavin Gordon, Sterling Holloway and Rafaela Ottiano. The screen play is by Gene Markey and Kathryn Scola.

"Ever in My Heart"
Romance of unusual strength and interest is said to mark the plot of Barbara Stanwyck's latest Warner Bros. picture, "Ever in My Heart," which opens on Thursday at the Alhambra. In the character of a New England girl a strong friendship exists between her and a cousin and their families take it for granted that they will marry. But when the cousin returns from abroad with a German professor, she immediately falls in love with the professor and weds him in defiance of her Puritan relatives. Their love runs smoothly and beautifully until the outbreak of the World War when friends and relatives turn their backs on her and the girl herself because she will not give him up. But they are eventually torn apart when her husband is driven to return to Germany to join the army by the snubs and cruelties heaped upon himself and wife by their friends. Later Stanwyck as a canteen worker in France meets her husband, as he is spying on the Allied forces. It is here that the picture turns into one of intense drama as she is torn between her love for her husband and her duty toward her own country. Otto Kruger, noted stage star, has the leading masculine role opposite Miss Stanwyck, while the remaining members of the cast are all noted on stage and screen. They include Ralph Bellamy, Ruth Donnelly, Laura Hope Crews, Frank Albertson, Donald Meek, Clara Blandick, Elizabeth Patterson and Harry Beresford. Archie Mayo directed the picture from a screen play by Bertram Millhauser which is based on the story by himself and Richard Marie Dix.

KOWLOON UNION CHURCH.

CHINESE MESSAGE PRESENTED BY MISS E. S. ATKINS

The Kowloon Union Church held its Sunday School Anniversary service yesterday morning, when an interesting and helpful address for the juveniles was given by Miss E. S. Atkins, of the St. Stephen's Girls' College. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. E. L. Allen, while at the close of the address, the prizes were distributed by Mrs. Allen, wife of the Minister.

In the course of her talk, Miss Atkins stressed the importance of love for one another, and said every child of every nation belonged to one family as the children of God. When Jesus was on earth some of his friends said: "Lord teach us to pray," and Jesus taught them to say: "Our Father." All day long throughout the world, little children were saying the last two words. She brought a message from their Chinese brothers and sisters for the Union Church in the form of a scroll, bearing the characters, "Tien ha yut ka," meaning "Under heaven we are all one family." It was a message given to the Chinese by a very wise man hundreds of years ago.

ILLEGAL TEMPLE.

BLIND MAN CONVICTED AND BOUND OVER

After hearing the case against a blind man, Chan Chien-yun, summoned for having unlawfully taken part in the maintenance or in the service of a temple at No. 21 Western Street, second floor, Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning, registered a conviction, and bound defendant over in a personal bond of $100 to come up for judgment within six months when called upon.

Mr. R. R. Todd, chief assistant to the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, prosecuting, said that the summons had been taken out as the result of a complaint by a gentleman of the disturbance created by the beating of drums and cymbals and the coming and going of worshippers to this temple.

Detective Inspector K. W. Andrew said that he entered the second floor of No. 21, Western Street, on June 15 at 8.20 a.m., and in the "feng" he found a wooden altar, and 19 images of gods, together with other temple paraphernalia, consisting of cups of wine, eggs, rice, trays of buns and cakes, a drum, etc. A woman, by the name of Cheung Ying, was there, and she told him she had come to worship, and had paid $2.80 to defendant's wife.

Possessed of a Devil.

Cheung Ying said she met defendant in the street on June 14, and asked him to tell her fortune. He said she was possessed with a devil, and asked her to come and worship at his house. She did so, and paid $2.80 to defendant's wife. Defendant's wife cut 36 lengths of thread and placed them on the eggs. She also lighted some joss sticks and candles on her behalf.

Lo Kam-chak, translator to the S. C. A., after examining the altar produced in Court, said it would be considered a Chinese temple

BAND CONCERT.

EAST LANCASHIRE BAND AT EUROPEAN Y.M.C.A.

Music of a high order was rendered by the band of the 2nd Battalion of the East Lancashire Regiment which gave a concert at the European Y.M.C.A., Kowloon, last night by kind permission of Brevet Lieut.-Colonel H. B. D. Willcox, D.S.O., M.C., and Officers.

The programme, which attracted many members and their friends, was as follows:—"Symphonic March", Mancini; Grand Overture, "Robespierre", Litoff; Piccolo Solo, "Le Jolo de Vivre", Cole; Soloist, Bandsman J. Sale; "The Golden Vale", arr. Winter; Tone Poem, "Finlandia", Sibelius; Trombone Solo, "Land me Your Aid", Gounod; Soloist, Bandsman F. W. Coward; Handel's celebrated "Largo", Selection from the Opera "I Pagliacci", Leonovillo; Excerpts from the Ballet Music "Havatha", Cole; "The Attack", "Lancashire Lad."

within the meaning of the Ordinance.

Mr. Todd then said that he had not received any application for the registration of this temple.

Defendant said he was a fortune teller by profession, and worked at Western Street. He was blind and could not work for his living, and he asked that an impartial view be taken of the case. The images were installed in all blind men's houses. The woman said she did not know how to worship, and he said he would worship for her. If he had refused, she would have told him his words were not the truth. He admitted taking part in the ceremony.

"You can't go on making a disturbance like this," said Mr. Hamilton, in convicting Chan. "You've got to stop it."

QUOTA THREAT

BRITISH MEASURE AGAINST GERMANY

London, June 24.
Consternation is spreading in British financial and business circles over the implications of the Bill introduced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the House of Commons on June 20 referring to debtor nations. The measure covers, as its title says, "debts clearing offices and import restrictions and reprisals," and the Chancellor's explanation in the House on Monday is being anxiously awaited.

The Bill is considered to contain what the Americans would call "a joker."

Section One empowers the Government to set up an Exchange Clearing Office to commandeer German-owned sterling derived from the sale of British goods and services to Germany for subsequent distribution to the holders of German bonds and notes.

Section Two goes in another direction and grants the Board of Trade practically blanket powers to set up the much-disliked quota system against any country and any class of goods.

At present the Government's power to impose quotas is confined only to certain limited descriptions of agricultural imports but under the Bill its powers would be extended to industrial imports of every description.—Our Own Correspondent.

TWO HUNDRED DOGS SHOT IN NEW TERRITORIES

CAMPAIGN AT KWANTI

FOLLOWING DISCOVERY OF RABID ANIMAL

SUSPICIONS AT SHING MUN

It is understood that following the appearance of a rabid dog at Kwanti recently, a round-up of stray dogs in the vicinity was carried out, the campaign resulting in the shooting of over two hundred animals.

Another suspected case of rabies in the New Territories was reported to the police during the week-end by a European owner at Shing Mun, whose dog was behaving in a peculiar manner.

The animal was examined and found to have two symptoms of rabies, a drooping lower jaw and weakness in the hind legs. The dog is to be killed and further examined.

As a precautionary measure, fourteen dogs at Shing Mun, including six owned by Europeans working on the Gorge Dam Scheme, have been placed in quarantine at Matukok and Kennedy Town.

SMUGGLING IN A DOG.

Characterising the action as simply disgraceful in view of the prevalence of rabies in the New Territories, Mr. Hamilton this morning imposed a fine of $25 or, in default, one month's imprisonment, on a carpenter, Yeung Woon-kee, charged with having brought a black chow dog from Tai Po into Hongkong without permission.

Inspector Misk said that the dog was carried inside a cloth bag. Mr. H. F. Westlake saw it carried by defendant on the vehicular ferry, and informed a Chinese constable. The dog was brought in from Tai Po.

Mr. Hamilton, thanking Mr. Westlake for pointing it out, ordered the dog to be taken to the Dogs' Home for observation.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dogs on Beaches

Sir,—In view of the present rabies outbreak, I should like to draw the attention of the authorities to the danger of dogs frequenting the public bathing beaches.

Yesterday, I visited Repulse Bay beach and counted no fewer than 15 dogs, four of which were unmuzzled. I took particular care not to count the same dog twice. As you know, many children frequent this beach—God help them if a dog runs amuck!

I consider it positively dangerous that dog-owners should allow their dogs to roam over the beaches at the present time, and I hope the authorities will see that an end is put to this menace.

NEW FINDS IN EGYPT

EXCAVATION OF PRE-HISTORIC SITE

REMARKABLE IVORY MINIATURES

(Special to "Telegraph").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received June 25, 4.31 a.m.)

Cairo, June 25. Some remarkably interesting finds throwing further light on the civilisation of ancient Egypt have just been unearthed.

An expedition from the New York Metropolitan Museum of Arts, excavating a prehistoric site at Maadi, have made some wonderful discoveries, including a grave containing the skeleton of an adult female, whose skull is larger and better filled than the typical Upper Egyptian Predynastic crania.

The discovery seems to suggest the existence in the Nile Delta of a people who were different from and much more advanced than the primitive inhabitants of old Upper Egypt.

Excavations at Lisht have revealed the burial chamber of a lady named Inpy, with a good set of jewellery, beads, earthenware figures, a razor, and ivory wand.

Four remarkable ivory miniatures are included in the collection. They are representations of dwarf-like men dancing and all are in an almost incredible state of preservation. —Reuter Special.

COERING TO MEET MUSSOLINI

DR. DOLLFUSS TO ATTEND

(Special to "Telegraph").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received June 25, 11.18 a.m.)

Rome, June 25. Another important conference between Italian and German leaders is expected to be arranged shortly.

It is understood that the Austrian Chancellor will, on this occasion, be invited to attend, an intimation that suggests that the future of Austria will probably furnish the principal topic of discussion.

It is reliably reported that the meeting has already been arranged and that it will take place at Stra, scene of the recent historic meeting of Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler.

It is stated that the principal representatives will be Signor Mussolini (Italy), Dr. Dollfuss (Austria) and General Goerring (Germany).

It is believed that they will meet during the week beginning July 1.

The principal topic of discussion is almost certain to be the relations of Germany and Austria, following the lines mapped out in the recent talk between Hitler and Mussolini. —United Press.

ASSAM FLOODED BY STORMS

TIGER'S REFUGE IN AN OFFICE

VILLAGERS TAKE TO TREETOPS

(Special to "Telegraph").
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received June 25, 4.31 a.m.)

Calcutta, June 24. Numerous deaths and enormous damage have accompanied widespread floods throughout Assam and Bengal, following torrential rains.

The situation is gravest in Upper Assam, which has been completely isolated by the floods.

The torrential rains almost amounted to a cloudburst over the Khasi and Jaintia Hills and the water rushed down into the valleys below in great walls, carrying everything before them, causing widespread destruction of life and property.

The officer in charge of the Woods and Forest Department at Sylhet received a shock when he found a tiger sheltering from the flood disaster in his office.

Many villages in Upper Assam are completely submerged and the villagers have taken refuge in the tops of trees. —Reuter Special.

GRUESOME FIND ON BEACH

MAN'S BODY IN A FISHING NET

The badly decomposed body of a Chinese, found by the Police on the foreshore at Pakko, in the Elephanta district, was removed to the Kowloon mortuary yesterday. The corpse was partly wrapped up in a fishing net washed down with a piece of stone. It is thought likely that the body was buried at sea from a Chinese fishing craft.

Mr. William C. Bullitt, U. S. Ambassador to the U. S. S. R. and his young daughter, Ann.

EXCURSION ENDS IN TRAGEDY

HEAD-ON RAILWAY COLLISION

DISASTER NEAR PARIS

Paris, June 25. Many were killed and injured in another serious railway accident near Paris late last night.

A head-on collision occurred between an excursionist train and a goods train near Lagaranne, about ten miles from Paris, and the passenger train was extensively damaged.

It was filled with excursionists who were on their way home in a local train on the Paris-Dieppe line, after watching the fireworks and illuminations in connection with the festivities that followed the Grand Prix.

Later, the toll of life in the train disaster was not so serious as was at first feared.

Only two persons were killed outright and thirty others were seriously injured.

SWIFT HELP.

The collision occurred right at the entrance to Nouilles station and assistance was swiftly forthcoming.

The train left the Gare St. Lazare at 10.23 p.m. and was travelling on the lines of the State Railway. —Reuter.

Later, it has now been ascertained that there were no deaths in the train collision, although the driver and the fireman of the excursionist train severely injured, are still pinned under the wreckage.

Forty persons were slightly injured. —Reuter.

UPWARD TREND OF DOLLAR

STRONG SUPPORT FOR SILVER

The Hongkong dollar rose 3/4 this morning to 1s. 5 1/2 d., which is the highest rate since the middle of April. Inter-bank business has been done this morning as high as 1s. 5 1/2 d. 3/4.

The market locally is very firm, with expectations of a further rise in the dollar rate.

Silver is strong in London, due to the belief that the United States is now embarking on an extensive buying policy.

Another factor inducing an upward trend in the dollar is that speculators in Shanghai are selling sterling.

AMBASSADOR IN AIR SMASH

SHAKEN BUT SAFE AND UNHURT

PILOT'S SKILL

Moscow, June 24. Mr. William C. Bullitt, the American Ambassador to Russia, had a narrow escape from death in a plane crash at Leningrad to-day.

Actually, he escaped unhurt, thanks largely to the skill of his pilot who could not avoid the crash, but managed it as gently as possible.

The aeroplane carrying the American Ambassador was proceeding to Leningrad where Mr. Bullitt had arranged to meet his twelve-year-old daughter, Ann.

The crash occurred owing to sudden engine failure just as the plane was manoeuvring to land at the aerodrome in Leningrad this afternoon.

OVERTURNS IN A SWAMP.

It finally finished, overturned, in a swamp.

Mr. Bullitt and the pilot, an American airman, Lieutenant White, were both unhurt, and crawled from the wreckage grinning.

It was the Ambassador's personal plane in which he has many a series of trips to various parts of the U.S.S.R. —Reuter.

U.S. COMMODITY PRICES

LONG VIEW NOW UPWARD

Washington, June 25. Expect a slightly more than seasonal business decline into August. Increased Government spending is stimulating business.

No major monetary developments are expected this summer.

Long view of commodity prices is upward. Second grade bonds, preferred and common stocks are likely to be postponed until the Fall as Unions need additional members to place themselves in stronger positions.

The United States public debt is estimated to be at 31 1/2 billions by June of next year. —Per Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

SHEK-O NOT NOW ISOLATED

The Shek-O road, which has been blocked as the result of a big landslide, is now again open, the obstruction having been cleared early this morning.

The road can now be used, but only by proceeding via Repulse Bay and Tytan.

MOTOR-LAUNCH SUNK

SHANGHAI MISHAP

Shanghai, June 25. One woman is believed to have been drowned when a motor-launch from Sungkiang, with twenty-three passengers on board, sank at 8.30 yesterday morning near Minghong, just outside Shanghai.

The other passengers and the crew were rescued by other craft rushed to the scene by a Chinese motorboat concern. —Reuter.

Falling from the deck into the hold aboard the steamer Texaco during the weekend, a workman, Tso Ying, 42, suffered injuries which necessitated his being sent to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

COL DI LANA AFLOAT

BADLY DAMAGED ON PRATAS

BEING TOWED TO HONGKONG

The Col Di Lana, the Lloyd Triestino freighter which ran aground on the north-west horn of the Pratas Shoal on Wednesday night, was re-floated at 5 a.m. this morning and will proceed to Hongkong this evening.

According to information obtained locally the vessel is flooded in the No. 2 hold, while leaks have been discovered in the No. 3 hold and the engine room. In view of the damage sustained it is not likely that the Col Di Lana will be able to make the Colony under her own steam but will be towed by the Henry Keswick which has been carrying out the salvage operations.

The Henry Keswick will collect together her salvage apparatus to-day and it is expected that the two vessels will leave early this evening. They are expected to arrive either to-morrow night or early on Wednesday morning.

The Col Di Lana was on her way from Tsingtao to Singapore and Europe when she ran aground.

Wins man who said

"I want unpainted kisses"

SHE knew the minute she met him that he was the man of her dreams. But he did not seem attracted to her. It was her own brother who guessed what was wrong. "Stop using a lipstick that makes you look painted," he said. Then she switched to Tangee. It can't make lips look painted... it isn't paint.

LOOKS ORANGE—ACTS ROSE

In the stick Tangee looks orange. But put it on and you'll see it change on your lips to the natural shade of rose most becoming to you. Instead of a greasy coating, Tangee becomes a very part of you... hence is longer-lasting than ordinary "paint" lipsticks. Tangee's special cream base soothes and softens, prevents lips from drying or chapping. Also in Theatrical, a deeper shade for professional use.

UNTOUCHED—Lips left untouched are apt to have a faded look... make the face seem older.

PAINTED—Don't risk that painted look, it's embarrassing and men don't like it.

TANGEE—Intensifies natural color, restores youthful appeal, ends that painted look.

ENDS THAT PAINTED LOOK

YOUR CHILDREN.

Let Growing Boys Have Fun

By Olive Roberts Barton

A mother came to me about her sixteen-year-old boy.

She complained of many things. He was lazy, wouldn't study as he should, fought with his sister. The entire indictment was just about the same as any other sixteen-year-old I ever knew except a few of the prodigies one runs into now and then.

And the summary of the case was the same, too. "He used to be such a fine boy. He always was so sweet and lovable and took such an interest in everything."

Where had I heard that before?

"Growing pains!" I answered. But she had heard that one too.

So we were just back where we started.

"Does he do anything?" I inquired. "Right?"

"Oh, yes. When he doesn't forget."

"What does he do?"

"Well, he likes to play ball. He's the best pitcher on the team."

"Anything at home? Any little things?"

"He's good at fixing. He can paint well. He did over the porch willow, the chairs and awing, with cream enamel. They look like new. No, I hadn't any trouble about that. He loves to paint. Yes, he whistled all the time he was working."

Dutiful at Home

And the list grew. The electric machines were kept in order. He didn't mind beating rugs either, but roared like a lion if his chores kept him home when he wanted to do something else. The big trouble was to get him started. He always had something else on hand and to catch him and hold him was almost impossible.

"I don't worry so much about now," she said, "as about the future. I'm afraid he'll grow up shiftless and careless and not be able to stick at anything. I talk to him until I am tired, but it only makes him worse."

"I'm going to ask something personal. Do you run bills?"

"Why, yes. Of course. Everybody does."

"Then you know what credit means. The stores give you credit. That means they have some faith in you even though you may not always be able to settle each account promptly on the tenth."

"Couldn't you give Charlie credit? It seems to me he does a good bit, but for all that no one extends him an account, and he probably realizes it. Everything he does do goes by the board and is accepted so casually he has gotten a bit resentful."

Reason He Rebels

"Oh, but we do give him credit. I always praise him for everything."

"I'm sure you do. But in spite of it all your worry creeps through. He knows his mistakes count more with you than his good marks. And the reason he fights his sister is that he thinks she feels the same way and that you two are in league against him, which you probably are, although you do not realize it."

"He likes to use his hands. He will outgrow that to some extent but I hope not too much. When his 'growing pains' stop he will concentrate more easily. More things will interest him. Let him know that you approve of him. He'll react more quickly, because you will have more influence. It takes time and patience, and some fun. Don't forget the fun. He'll stay home more. A good-time Charlie of this sort won't be so lazy and sullen. He'll probably surprise you."

CHAPTER XXXIV

"Miss Gray to see you." The automatic announcer on Tom Weaver's desk parroted the words and Tom, frowning, said, "Let her come in."

The girl who presently appeared on the threshold was dazzling in her morning freshness. Her gold-and-white, rather flashy good looks were admirably set off by a brown tailored suit, faultlessly cut. The guardsman's hat of gleaming brown straw was worn at a perilous angle. Vera, Tom reflected, had always known how to wear clothes. She was the type that young men still artlessly describe as a "knockout."

"Good morning!" She greeted herself in the one comfortable chair in the cubicle and smiled at him brilliantly.

"I didn't know you were back," Tom said. "Cigarette?" She accepted one and lighted it gracefully. Everything this girl did was studied.

"Got that bird Varick at last," she said with a satisfied smile. "You did?" Tom showed interest. "You all said I couldn't. Even Mr. Lawrence said I couldn't. But I did!" Her white teeth flashed in triumph.

"Well, he's always been a hard nut. Hard man to see," Tom said reflectively. "Vamped him, eh?" "I wouldn't say that." Her silvery laugh tinkled in modesty.

"Lawrence'll be pleased," Tom averred in his chair, staring out over the roofs.

"You should have had that account, Tommy!" Her voice took on warmer notes and she laid a hand on his sleeve.

"Oh, rot, it's your business! Glad to see a young girl get along." He grinned at her.

"Wasn't it the funniest thing?" she asked with relish. "My walking in here that day and Mr. Lawrence remembering me back at the Boston office and asking how I'd like to try my hand at the New York work?"

"Certainly was!" Tom's voice sounded enthusiastic enough but there were little lines around his eyes. He looked tired.

"And I was just mad to come down, of course. Who wouldn't be?" Vera demanded. "It was the chance of a lifetime."

"Well, you're making good."

Who says you're not?" Tom spoke heartily. "I love it here." Vera stripped off her gloves, rising. "I've got to get some letters off. I suppose you're going downstairs to lunch at about one?"

The young man showed signs of embarrassment. "Matter of fact, I'm not," he told her. "I've got to see a man uptown and I'm grabbing a sandwich. Besides I'm keeping in close touch with the house."

"Something wrong?" She lifted her eyebrows delicately. "Gypsy's father," he explained. "Auto accident. He's in a bad way."

"Oh, too bad!" She was reddening her lips now. The tone was perfunctory.

"I'm all cut up about it," Tom stated with finality. "Very fond of Mr. Morell. He's one grand guy. And of course, Gypsy's frightfully upset."

"Mmm. I can imagine." She stood irresolute in the doorway and he made no move to detain her.

"Well, I'll be seeing you." But after she had gone, leaving a faint, inescapable trace of scent on the air, he put his head in his hands and groaned a little. Gypsy and Vera! Gypsy and Vera! Oil and water, these two natures were.

He liked the girl—couldn't help admiring her enterprise. She was a smart business woman and awfully feminine in the bargain. He'd been hoping she'd go back to Boston but she had told Lawrence she didn't want to—so that was that! When she had come into the office a few months ago their old friendship had renewed itself.

Hang it all, a man couldn't be a blooming prig! He couldn't say to a girl he'd known so long, "I'm terribly sorry but I'm married now. I can't pass the time of day with you any more."

No, he couldn't do that! And at first he had been afraid to mention to Gypsy the fact that Lawrence (taken with Vera's good looks) had given her a job in the same office. Gypsy would have been suspicious. Women were funny that way. Well, he hadn't mentioned the matter and Vera had helped him to land that silk stocking account. He had had to see her out of hours; they had both entertained the space buyers. Why hadn't he told Gypsy then? He couldn't exactly explain. Was it possible he had enjoyed Vera's society as a woman rather than a co-worker? Darn it, she was attractive; she was good fun. Gypsy had been ten times more amusing, more delightful, but that was in the early days, the pre-David days.

It seemed a pity motherhood had to take such a grip on some women. Tom reflected, stuffing his pipe. David was important, of course. He was the son and heir, an adorable scrap of babyhood. But Gypsy had altered so since his arrival. She didn't want to do things, go places any more. Men weren't used to being tied to a house. They were broken in to the routine of matrimony much less easily than girls.

He thought of Gypsy's white, stricken face as he had left her that morning and almost groaned aloud! His girl, little and slim and adorable; what was she doing now? What particular hell was she going through?

He reached for the telephone. Miles away, across a river, up a line of hills, in a shabby mansured house a bell tinkled and Clytie's voice came through. "Miss Weaver? He just the same."

"I'll call Miss Gypsy." A wait and then Gypsy's faint hello. "We're waiting. The doctors are both here."

Tom reached for his hat and slammed out of the office. The "man uptown" of whom he had spoken to Vera was more or less fictional. There were several people he had to see but none of the calls were urgent.

Vera was in the outer office as he whirled through, talking to the switchboard girl. At sight of Tom she said, "Don't forget. Tell him I'll be in at three." and tripped after Tom.

"Going up now?" He grinned at her. She was as tall as he. "Far as Seventy-second street."

"I'm going as far as Times Square," she said, lightly. "I'll trail along if you don't mind."

"O. K., lady." She tucked her bag under one tailored arm and tripped along beside him, her high heels clicking. Tom was conscious of admiring glances as they threaded the noon day crowds. No doubt about it, she was a good-looking girl. Funny she hadn't married. Of course she was always raving about a career but Tom had noticed that other girls who talked the same way plunged headlong into marriage when the fancy took them. And Vera had lots of beaux. There was always some Johnny on the telephone asking her to dance and dine and what-not.

They had to walk two blocks to the hooded subway entrance, jostling people as they went and dodging taxis at the intersections. The ride uptown, with the swaying cars hurling themselves forward at breakneck speed through the tunnels, made conversation impossible. Just before the Times Square station was reached the girl touched his arm lightly and said, "Get out here with me, Tommy, and have a chocolate malted. It will only take a sec. I particularly want to ask you something."

It would have seemed churlish to refuse. He could have his soda fountain drink; he could go on uptown without feeling guilty. It was a matter of business—Vera was always demanding his advice. Gypsy, far away and in trouble, would neither know nor be hurt.

They climbed on twin stools at a gleaming white and chromium counter. All about them was the paraphernalia of the modern drug store, the books, alarm clocks, costumed dolls, rubber goods and nosegays of lollipops which form the background for one lone, lost counter where chemists ply their trade.

"What I want to know," Vera demanded gayly after a white-coated youth had taken their order, "what I want to know is what have I done to make you mad at me? Why don't you like me any more?"

"Me?" Tom stared. "You're crazy, girl. I think you're a whiz." Her curved smile had a tinge of witfulness. "That sounds good," she told him, "but you haven't been a bit friendly lately. You've been—well, just horrid."

"What is all this about?" Tom took a sip of ice water and tried to make his humour hearty.

"I must have done something—said something," Vera offered plaintively. "I wish you'd tell me. I'm so fearfully hurt about it."

"Maybe I'm crazy," Tom said good-naturedly. "I don't know what you're driving at. I'm not mad at you. You haven't done anything to annoy me, and shall we talk about something else?"

Her eyes were fiery. "Sure, Tommy?" "Absolutely!"

"I'm so terribly glad," she whispered softly. "Because you know what it's always meant to me, having you about, don't you, Tommy?"

The man's heart sank. What was he letting himself in for now? (To be continued.)

WATER LEVELS.

FOR WEST, NORTH AND EAST RIVERS

The River Conservancy Commission for Kwangtung Province notifies that the height of water in English feet in the West, North and East Rivers is as follows:

LAID TO REST

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL OF MICHAEL PAINE

Touching scenes were witnessed at the funeral of little Michael Paine, only son of Master Gunner Paine, Royal Artillery, and Mrs. Paine, which was held at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and sympathisers. The Rev. N. V. Halward, M.C., M.A., Pastor of the Kowloon Tong Anglican Church, officiated at the graveside.

Michael Paine met his death in tragic circumstances on Friday afternoon, as the result of the extraordinary action of a Chinese, now under detention, who ran amuck soon after the heavy rain, and threw five children, one of whom was the deceased, twin sister, into the nullah beside the lower Peak Tramway Station.

A large number of friends followed the hearse to the Cemetery gates, from whence the coffin was carried to the graveside by Master Gunner Wardle, Sharp, Timms and Longman.

After the burial service had been read the deceased's father took a handkerchief containing toy soldiers, the favourite playthings of the child, and placed these in the coffin. Mrs. Paine, was also present at the graveside.

Others present included Mr. and Mrs. Medina, Captain P. S. Cannon, A.E.C., Captain E. Hague, R. A. and Mrs. Hague, M. G. M. Manley, S/Sgt. and Mrs. Henderson, C. G. M. S. and Mrs. Derry, Capt. CULT OF FASHION

STRONG DENUNCIATION BY CATHOLIC PRIEST

In a sermon remarkable for its outspokenness, delivered at the nine o'clock Mass at Rosary Church, Kowloon, yesterday the Rev. Fr. H. De Angelis, of the Italian Mission, roundly denounced the modern fashion, in prevailing feminine fashion: The condemnation extended to tennis and beach shorts, as well as high split skirts, as he weighed the respective advantages of maidenly reserve and modesty with a blatant display of ex cathedra evident in some women.

The Church was filled to capacity with a congregation, the majority of whom were women.

The Rosary Church is one which has always taken a strong view on the subject, and on a previous occasion, a notice was posted up forbidding women who were not decorously dressed from entering.

"It is said," Fr. De Angelis began, "that priests are not in a position to speak on subjects like cinema, theatres, cabarets, and so on, because they know nothing about them. There is one subject on the moral side, however, of which I should like to speak to you this morning, and of which I have confidence no one can say we are ignorant, for the very simple reason that we also have our eyes to see what is going on."

"The subject is modern women and how they are dressed. 'The question presupposes itself: What should be the adornments of women? And we find the answer in the first letter of St. Peter. 'Whose adorning, let it not be the outward adorning of plaiting of the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is rich in the sight of God.'"

Profaning the Body.

"The purpose of dress is twofold: to protect the body and to ornament it. But nowadays some women (and this morning I speak to you, and not of you)—some women have perverted the use of dress, so that, instead of protecting and ornamenting the body, they undress and profane it."

"There was a time when women attracted the attention and admiration of the populace by a certain style of dress, but now it seems the surest way of making a woman no matter whether she is old or young—popular is to abbreviate her dress, or the lack of dress altogether."

"The way some women dress nowadays induces only dishonourable love. As a matter of fact, it is wrong to call it love at all. It is passion, more passion, sex passion. It implies no honest purpose, no idea whatever of true affection."

"Man may use the half-dressed woman as a toy, but he will never love her. He will amuse himself with her, but he will not marry her, ordinarily; and if he does, the marriage will not last longer than a few weeks. As a rule, a marriage resulting from the admiration of a certain style of dress is a matter of lust and brutal instinct. And lust is cruel, and when it is too late, the woman will realise it and will pay a life-long penalty."

Man's Nature.

"Man has a twofold nature: the animal nature and the spiritual nature. 'An indecently dressed woman, no matter where she be, on the tennis court, on the bathing beach, or in a dancing party, may compel that admiration which is only the animal part of his nature, and not the spiritual.'"

"A naturally decent woman does not desire the admiration that comes from sacrificing her modesty; and a naturally decent man does not want to associate with a woman who does."

"A woman of intelligence and taste does not seek popularity by a vulgar display of her flesh, by showing her knees or by a scantiness of attire; and if she does all this, she reveals what she really is, a creature given over to the wills of the flesh, and let me speak frankly, to bestiality."

"Be not surprised if I speak in the way I have done. A Catholic preacher does not fear criticism just because what he preaches runs counter to public opinion, or may invite anonymous correspondence that is fit only to be thrown into the waste-paper basket or be discussed as a delicious tit-bit at gossiping mah-jong parties."

"Without any fear, it may be said that a woman who dresses indecently becomes a pliable instrument in the hands of the Devil. She does his work. She helps him to pull down man to an ignominious and base level. 'Pair of Short Pants.'"

"A woman who indulges in such licence tramples underfoot the promises of baptism. Is that the way of renouncing the devil and all his work, and all his pomps?"

"For a pair of short pants or for a high split skirt she is ready to fall on her knees before the infernal serpent, of whom she is the right hand in the work of dissolution and further destruction."

"The modern woman is a slave of fashion. She is made a caricature, a toy. Fashion is her queen. Fashion demands, and she obeys, and even obeys so blindly that if fashion in the near future will demand it, we shall see all modern women going along the street with a broom in the right hand."

"A woman who dresses herself in the style that appeals to the baser male instincts can do much mischief and is more powerful than a fully-equipped army."

SALESMAN SENT TO GAOLSTOLE SINGLET FROM FACTORY

Sentence of two months' hard labour was passed on Fok Ping-kan, aged 23, a salesman, who was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with theft of 22 singlets from the Chung Wo Knitting Factory, by whom he was employed.

Detective Sergeant Kennedy stated that the singlets were stolen on various dates between June 17 and 24, and were pawned in various pawnshops. The singlets were worth $1.20 each. So far, 19 had been recovered. When arrested defendant had $57 in his possession.

His Worship, after passing sentence, made an order for the redemption of the singlets with the money found on the defendant.

Defendant's employer, So Chai-fong, pleaded with his Worship to be lenient with the defendant, as this was his first offence.

His Worship, however, pointed out that it was not a case of sudden temptation; the thefts were carried out over a period of time.

JUGGLER'S GONG

NUISANCE SUMMONS
FAILS

"We don't want to interfere with a legitimate business, you know," remarked Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when Wong Tin-ai, described as a juggler, was charged with beating a gong calculated to annoy in Kowloon Tong yesterday.

Inspector Post said defendant was conducting a kind of "Punch and Judy" show in Kowloon Tong and employed a gong in the process.

His Worship:—Were there any complaints?

Inspector Post:—No.

His Worship:—I think the police should only take action when there is an actual complaint.

Inspector Post:—It is not very pleasant to have a gong like that just under your window.

A constable, who was holding the gong, was asked to beat it. He did so, and after hearing the sound, his Worship said, "It is a rather pleasant gong; I have heard worse noises than that."

Defendant was discharged.

THE BOOKSHELF

THE HEAD-HUNTERS
OF THE PHILIPPINES

In "Taming Philippine Head-hunters," Felix M. Keessing, M.A., D. Litt., and Marie Keessing, M.A., give us a most interesting study of the inhabitants of the mountains and jungles of the Northern Philippines and of the problems of their cultural and economic development. The volume, to which an introduction has been written by Theodore Roosevelt Jr., former Governor-General of the Philippines, is published by George Allen and Unwin, Ltd., London, at 10s. 6d. nett. It is a comprehensive work based on a special study of the problem made by the authors under the aegis of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Malayan, Indonesian and plimny, there are a quarter of a million people in these regions, so-called non-Christians, differing widely in life and custom, and little touched by Western civilisation until the 20th Century. The book reveals the special system of administration worked out by American and Filipino leaders, the problems (economic, social, religious and educational) involved in their adjustment to modern conditions, the degree to which the inhabitants are being assimilated by the Christian Filipinos of the lowlands, and their likely destiny should the Philippines speedily achieve independence.

The authors, whose sincerity in dealing with the complex issues is apparent throughout, do not disguise their fears for the future, but their views, whilst markedly critical in some respects, are, above all else, constructive in character. A plea is made for a better understanding of the mind of the mountain youth—the real task being to strike a balance between encouraging the exercise of local pride and self-respect and fostering a sense of national solidarity. It is put on record that the whole mountain experiment in administration may be summarised as having been very successful so far. The Spaniards did the rough blocking-out of the problem, and the Americans obtained the first spectacular results; to the Filipinos acting with the handful of remaining Americans, assisted by the mountain missions, is left the difficult task of carrying their work through the oncoming generations to a successful finale of political competence and cultural stability and of advancement in modern ways approximately equal to that of the Filipino peasantry elsewhere.

Stress is laid on the immense difficulties of the task which lies ahead, the situation being described as one of increasing difficulty and one that will make heavy demands on a young nation. The whole work bears the impress of careful study and the pleasure in following the authors' analysis is enhanced by the literary excellence of the book and the clarity with which the writers' views are propounded.

ILLEGAL TEMPLE.

BLIND MAN CONVICTED AND BOUND OVER

After hearing the case against a blind man, Chan Chi-yun, summoned for having unlawfully taken part in the maintenance of a temple at No. 21 Western Street, second floor, Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday morning, registered a conviction, and bound defendant over in a personal bond of $100 to come up for judgment within six months when called upon.

Mr. R. R. Todd, chief assistant to the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, prosecuting, said that the summons had been taken out as the result of a complaint by a gentleman of the disturbance created by the beating of drums and cymbals and the coming and going of worshippers to this temple.

Detective Inspector K. W. Andrew said that he entered the second floor of No. 21, Western Street, on June 15 at 8.20 a.m., and in the "temple" he found a wooden altar, and 19 images of gods, together with other temple paraphernalia, consisting of cups of wine, eggs, rice, trays of buns and cakes, a drum, etc. A woman, by the name of Cheung Ying, was there, and she told him she had come to worship, and had paid $2.80 to defendant's wife.

Possessed of a Devil.

Cheung Ying said she met defendant in the street on June 14, and asked him to tell her fortune. He said she was possessed with a devil, and asked her to come and worship at his house. She did so, and paid $2.80 to defendant's wife. Defendant's wife cut 36 lengths of thread and placed them on the eggs. She also lighted some joss sticks and candles on her behalf.

Lo Kum-chak, translator to the S. C. A., after examining the altar produced in Court, said it would be considered a Chinese temple within the meaning of the Ordinance.

Mr. Todd then said that he had not received any application for the registration of this temple.

Defendant said he was a fortune teller by profession, and worked at Western Street. He was blind and could not work for his living, and he asked that an impartial view be taken of the case. The images were installed in all blind men's houses. The woman said she did not know how to worship, and he said he would worship for her. If he had refused, she would have told him his words were not the truth. He admitted taking part in the ceremony.

"You can't go on making a disturbance like this," said Mr. Hamilton, in convicting Chan.

"You've got to stop it."

GOLF COURSE
REOPENINGAN AUTHORITATIVE STATEMENT

In view of conflicting statements regarding the reopening of golf courses damaged by the recent heavy rains, the Secretary of the Golf Club (Lieut.-Col. E. D. Matthews) asks us to state that Happy Valley is closed anyhow till Wednesday, 27th inst., as the grass cannot be cut and there is a lot of mud on the Course. The date of re-opening cannot be guaranteed.

Deep Water Bay will be opened partially to-day and possibly all holes except the first will be in use—perhaps only six holes will be open. Given reasonable weather, it is hoped that all this Course may be open in about another week.

Fanning Old Course is in excellent shape. The Relief Course is wet and the grass on it is long.

INCIDENT ON BLAKE
PIERBROKER WITH FOOT ON SEAT

Cheng Yiu-hon, 21, described as a broker, was fined two dollars by Mr. Macduden this morning for putting his feet on a public seat on Blake Pier.

Sub-Inspector L. Mait stated that defendant was told by an Indian constable not to put his feet on the seat and he not only ignored the warning, but became infuriated and threatened to take the constable's number for speaking to him. At Central, defendant complained of an assault and was sent to the C.C.I. The medical examination revealed nothing.

Defendant: My foot was itchy and I put it on the seat to scratch it.

Private Norman Smith, of the Lincolns, was sentenced to 28 days at a court-martial at Shamshuipo, where he was charged with being found asleep while on duty as a sentinel of the New Magazine Guard. The sentence was confirmed and suspended.

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him" (1 Cor. 8:6).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. . . . And God said, Let there be light, and there was light. And God saw the light that it was good. . . . Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great: thou art clothed with honour and majesty. Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment. . . . Who laid the foundations of the earth that it should not be removed forever" (Gen. 1:1,3,4; Psalms 104:1,2,5).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let there be light," is the perpetual demand of Truth and Love, changing chaos into order and discord into the music of the spheres. . . . The rays of infinite Truth, vision gathered into the focus of ideas, bring light instantaneously, whereas a thousand years of human doctrines, hypotheses, and vague conjectures emit on such effulgence" (p.255, 504).

Paris, June 23.

Amazing scenes were witnessed this afternoon on the fashionable Longchamps race course on the eve of the famous Grand Prix.

A mob, infuriated at the scratching of El Kantara, the favourite for the second race, rushed the paddock, strewed aridine tins looted from a lorry on the course, bored holes on the track, tore up the railings and set fire to the betting booths.

The Police repeatedly charged the rioters before the disturbances were quelled.

As a result of the damage and disorder, the remainder of the meeting was cancelled.

The entrance money, and the bets for the third race, which was not run, were returned.—Router Special.

SATURDAY'S WEDDING AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Wearing a beautiful ivory satin gown created by "Revuo" of Sydney, Miss Masie Gertrude Martin, eldest daughter of the late Mr. W. G. Martin and Mrs. M. A. Martin, late of Sydney and the and Philippine Islands, was married on Saturday at St. Andrew's Church to Mr. Herbert William B. Musket, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Musket of Hongkong.

The Rev. J. R. Higgs officiated at the ceremony while appropriate music was rendered on the organ by Mr. Rupert Baldwin.

The bridegroom, who is brother to Mrs. J. R. Suiter, is attached to the office staff of the Hongkong Electric Co.

The bride was given away by Mr. J. R. Way of the Hongkong Electric and looked charming in her ivory satin gown cut on classic lines, set off with a cut tulle veil. She carried a bridal sheaf of tangerine-tinted gladioli.

Silver and eau-de-nill were the two shades combined in the frocks of lady and bridesmaids, the Misses Isabel Pestonji (chief bridesmaid), Ina Buchanan, Jean Ewing and Laureen Gleno. They carried posies of pink carnations, supplied by "Myers."

Mrs. J. R. Suiter was Mistress of Honour while the duties of best man were undertaken by Mr. H. S. Jones of the Hongkong Electric. The bride's mother wore a gown of mustard tulle edged with black wind-swept satin and set off with a large black picture hat.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at 254, Prince Edward Road, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Suiter. After the usual toasts and best wishes, the happy couple left for their honeymoon, which is to be spent in Canton.

The bride chose fawn for her going-away ensemble.

DEATH OF CAPT. R.
F. MITCHELL.TWO FIVE YEARS
ON CHINA COAST

There will be much regret among members of the sea-faring community in Hongkong at the passing early yesterday afternoon of Capt. R. F. Mitchell formerly of the China Navigation Company.

Capt. Mitchell served on the Australia Orient route and on the China coast for 25 years, all of which time was spent with the China Navigation Company.

He had been ill for several months and had been compelled to stay at the Kowloon Hospital for attention.

Born in Scotland he joined the Federal Company and served on the England-Australia-New Zealand run for a few years as a junior officer. Later he transferred to the China Navigation Company, serving on the old steamer Changsha.

Capt. Mitchell was a Master Mariner and commanded several vessels on the China Coast including the Taikoo Wan-yi, and the Fat Shan.

A keen follower of football, Capt. Mitchell was a member of the Kowloon Football Club and was at one time connected with the Kowloon Cricket Club.

He was also a member of the St. John's Lodge of Free Masons.

He leaves a widow, two sons, and a daughter all of whom are residents of the Colony.

Co., Kowloon.

Although the bride and the bridegroom are both quite well-known in Hongkong, they managed to keep the date and time of the ceremony a secret from their many friends.

The duties of best man were undertaken by Mr. J. C. Gill, Mesdames E.G. Powell and F.C. Gleno were Matrons of Honour, the former attired in a blue silk dress and black straw hat and the latter in a salmon-pink and black ensemble.

The happy couple later left for their honeymoon, which is being spent at Repulse Bay Hotel.

AID FOR BRITISH SHIPPING

The question of Government assistance for British shipping is one which is being followed with deep interest here in Hongkong by reason of the hope that it may be possible to evolve some scheme which will lead to better times for an industry which has been badly hit by the depression. There is prospect of an international conference of the principal maritime nations, to consider laying-up schemes and other proposals. In the meantime, it is interesting to note that opposition to any organised laying-up scheme has been voiced by the British Mercantile Marine Service Association, which holds the view that such a method of handling the problem may prove injurious rather than otherwise to British interests. The suggestion on which the Association bases its opposition is that the Governments of the countries who become party to the scheme should pay shipowners a bounty for the tonnage they lay up, and that 25 per cent. of the British tonnage should be temporarily disposed of in this way. Objection to this plan rests on the belief that only a portion of the world's maritime countries would adopt it, and that any effort along these lines to create an artificial shortage and force up freights would only be the signal for those outside the agreement to bring out their laid-up ships. There is the further contention that the move would put Britain on a par with certain countries whose merchant fleets have grown enormously by the purchase of obsolete tonnage, much of which is at present idle. Certain countries can even now show an augmented service, even with 25 per cent. or more out of action, while Britain has experienced a big decline since the war. The Association does not object to British action by means of subsidies to protect its shipping, but it is suspicious of international arrangements which may do more harm than good to British interests. The whole problem is, of course, one of considerable complexity, but in the last resort better days for the industry must depend on trade expansion.

NOTES OF THE DAY

SILVER IN AMERICA

General business conditions in the United States in the last three months have not been so good as they were, and further summer slackness is anticipated, the horizon being far from clear. Even the devastating drought in the Middle West has not stimulated wheat prices to the extent that might reasonably have been expected. In these circumstances, hints are being dropped that the Silver Act may prove to be something quite different from the innocuous time-gaining measure it was at first supposed to be, and that there is a direct connection seems highly probable. Mr. Morgenthau has not committed himself to carrying out the ratio policy of the silver act within any specified time; he has, indeed, been purposely ambiguous in all his references to the Treasury policy on silver; but he talks of stimulating general commodity prices by use of the silver lever and steady buying in many markets is readily admitted. How far this policy is to be pursued is not clear. But it is not unimportant that it has been embarked upon and the best guess is probably that the preliminary results are being made the subject of a close study. The findings may be marked by intensification of buying or the calling of a halt. Time alone can show.

SIGNIFICANT

The rapidity with which the Silver Act has been followed up has surprised most interested quarters though there is no reason why it should have done. The jubilation of the silver advocates when the Silver Bill was drafted was most significant. Although authorisation of silver purchases was permissive, a promise was apparently extracted from the President that, in addition to the acceptance of the principle that gold reserves should be eked out with silver at the 75:25 ratio, he would at some time or other implement it. This of course was in line with the President's policy as adumbrated at the World Conference last July. The Pittman resolution, authorised by the President, provided that central banks, instead of maintaining gold alone against their notes and deposits, "agree that 80 per cent of the metal cover shall be in gold and 20 per cent shall be optionally in gold or silver." That meant little or nothing, except as an invitation to the world to buy silver and stick it in their vaults as backing for money. But it failed of agreement. Now the United States is apparently creating a precedent without waiting for any agreement, or even without consulting other nations.

EXCESS RESERVES

Will the rest of the world follow suit? It is very doubtful. Modern nations have never shared the enthusiasm of the United States for silver. They ask why they should go to the expense of adding to what they now regard as a superfluity of standard money. Certain Americans ask the same question. For the superfluity of standard money is more patent in the United States than elsewhere. It is notorious that never before in American history has there been so much idle money awaiting employment. Every week the Federal Reserve System makes public an item called "excess reserves," meaning the funds in the banks over and above those required for their deposit requirements. For months past this excess, which is available for loans up to more than ten times its amount, has been around $1,500,000,000. It is argued by opponents of silver purchases that Treasury buying of silver will simply increase this surplus without providing any means for using it.

COMPROMISE AGAIN

Immediate silver purchases are not likely to make much difference to business activity. In fact, they might make for some disturbance of confidence. It was in order to give investment confidence a chance to revive that the President, through his Secretary of the Treasury, pleaded a short while ago for breathing spell from new monetary legislation. He has succumbed to a political agitation which has been without parallel in its driving force. Even Prof. Raymond Moley calls it "a most destructive and dangerous" agitation. But it gained an impetus from the President's own compromising. In December last he agreed to the purchase of all current production of silver in the United States at 64½ cents an ounce. The purchases, compared with current prices in the market, represented a bonus of 50 per cent. to the silver purchasers. Apparently the President imagined that the windfall would satisfy the silver advocates. But the agitation has prospered on what it has fed upon, and the December compromise has led the White House to another compromise, which promises to put into operation a silver programme in its most elaborate regalia.

THE GREAT DROUGHT

By F. W. THOMAS

AS the late Mark Antony said in one of his poignant election addresses: "If you have tears prepare to shed them now. For this is very so-b-mak-ing and altogether glum-mish. And while you are at it you may as well weep over the carrots, for they want rain badly. How sad it is to see the phlox, the carnation and the tender pink, with little tongues all hanging out and simply dying for a drink. The hollyhock and candytuft, the spinach and the brussels sprout, are drooping in their little beds, all limp and lifeless through the drought. As Mobs, the gardener, said to-day, "The beetroot and the columbine will soon begin to fade away unless we get a drop of rain."

"And look at them carnations, too, the Jarkspur and the cherrypie; you'd hardly think, although it's true, I've watered them three times to-day."

The water-butt is empty now—but this is not the time to talk. I think I'd better go and teach my little goldfish how to walk.

Extracts from the newspapers two months hence, if something doesn't soon happen:

TRAITORI

Under the recently-passed Act for the Conservation of Water Mr. Theophilus Goodge was charged at Tidesbury with secretly washing himself behind the ears.

Det.-Sgt. Bingle said that having hid himself in prisoner's dustbin he saw Goodge with a large bowl of water, actually putting his face in it, and stopping it about over his head. There was enough liquid in the bowl to have watered nineteen ears of corn for three days. (Sensation.)

Mr. Gollop, the magistrate, addressing prisoner, said that at a time of national crisis such as this any man who indulged in surreptitious and unnecessary abolutions was a traitor to his country. Goodge, who offered no defence, was sent to prison for three months, and the court ordered his washing licence to be suspended for two years. Prisoner was hoisted as he left the dock.

BOY'S HEROISM.

At Poppleton Parish Hall last night Percival Potts, a local Boy Scout, was presented with a B-flat mouth-organ, subscribed for by a number of admirers as a mark of their appreciation of his bravery. Unknown to his parents, Potts had put by his small weekly allowance of washing water in order to save the life of a pet petunia, the property of his grandmother.

In making the presentation the Mayor of Poppleton said—But you don't want to hear that. He always says the same thing. "It is such men as you, Mr. Potts, who have made England and all that sort of poppycock."

CHANNEL SWUM

Mrs. Euphemie Gurge, the well-known Channel swimmer, swum the well-known Channel last night. Owing to the water shortage she had to walk seven miles before she could get out of her depth. The swimming part of her journey took her just under half-an-hour.

To-morrow, if the present dry weather continues, she hopes to swim back in about ten minutes. Mrs. Gurge, whose husband drives a watercart, but is now out of work, said she merely did it to get her name in the paper.

The Mayor of Wipplisham, who accompanied the swimmer on the flats, said, "It is such men as you, Mrs. Gurge, who have made England and so on and so on."

STRANGE PHENOMENON IN THE WEST.

Last evening, shortly after seven, at Little Dabbington in Devon, there fell a most torrential shower which lasted nearly half an hour.

The rain came pouring from the clouds, attracting large and curious crowds; and people ran from house and cot, with jug and pail and gallipot, to gather up the glittering boon, with sponge and saucer, cup and spoon.

And every little weed and flower grew five feet six in half an hour, while children who had never seen a shower before said "What's it mean? Can this be what is known as mud? And will there be another flood?" In something under half a minute the village pond had water in it, and ducks who'd never learnt to swim stood stiff with fear upon the brim.

Interviewed by our local representative, Mr. Abel Isafay, the oldest inhabitant, who can still eat without his glasses, said "Ay, that be rain all right. Man and boy I've lived in these parts for over two hundred years, and many's the time I've seed it coming down like billy-o and old boots."

"Wunnerful stuff it is, too, but nothing like what we used to have in the good old days. Why, when I were a boy people used to wash in it. All over some of 'em, and throw the water away afterwards. Yes, they did! And I'll fight anybody who says I'm a liar, in spite of my three hundred years."

"But the finest lot of rain I ever remember was a great old time ago; years and years and donkey's years. My giddy aunt, but her did rain then surely. Forty days and forty nights of it without stopping; and even the ducks got drowned."

"And there was an old gaffer lived up-along, feller named Nora; and he got scared, and built himself a great old boat, and took his wife aboard, and all his pigs and hoeses, and—"

Unfortunately at this juncture Mr. Isafay's mother came to put him to bed.

And talking of water—But here comes Maud Emil, very urgent, and accompanied by a large culinary smell, and please, sir, what shall I do with this?

"You see, sir, I was cooking something special for you, and I went upstairs to see if by slater was waiting outside for be, because she's going to take be to the pictures this afternoon, and we're going to see Adolph Mong-Joo, and I think it's simply lovely the way he crrrrushes them to his shirt front before he kisses them, and when I got down stairs agate the thig I was cooking for you was all od fire, and it was something special, a dish of by own cremation, and now even the cat won't loog at it, so you'll have to do with the gold button instead."

The Very Idea!

JEEJEEBHOY GETS HOME

By George

"THE GOLDEN CANDAREEN"

SUDDENLY the silence of the night was dramatically broken. . . . You will remember folks that that was Wednesday night and Jeejeebhoy and Madge have been kept in suspense ever since.

So have we for that matter but we have decided that it is not fair to our readers to keep these two central figures of romance and mystery separated in our soul-stuffed serial any longer. So here's to it folks!

Madge drew herself up (you will remember that she was cross-legged in our last instalment) and heaved a sigh which shook her from stem to stern and burst her shoe laces.

At last, Jeejeebhoy was here!

The shadow on the wall which had been behaving like a silhouette of a camel doubled up with gout became Jeejeebhoy's well-known profile.

It came nearer. It was real.

So was the Peak but it didn't come nearer.

Jeejeebhoy braced himself up. He must make a good showing at this long looked for reunion. He must never let Madge have the slightest suspicion . . .

With a shriek of well-feligned delight he leaped clean over the verandah into Madge's open arms . . .

What happens to Jeejeebhoy when he leaps clean over the verandah into Madge's open arms? Does she drop him or does he fall short? We will tell you to-morrow whether Madge suspects that Jeejeebhoy has been unfaithful but in the meantime let us leave her reposing in the blissful trust of that great moment when Reginald shrieked. It seems that Jeejeebhoy is no nearer his demise than last week but you may find the amah poisoning him with pork and leaks in our next issue in a fit of jealousy. In any case, folk, Jeejeebhoy has only three more instalments to go and then we shall have to leave him at his little desk in the P.W.D.

LESSONS IN JOURNALISM.

The Public

Of course the greatest authority on journalism is undoubtedly the man in the street who pays ten cents for a newspaper for the satisfaction of assuring himself that it contains all the news he already knows.

Journalism seems to be peculiarly unfortunate in that it does not attract the people who would make good at the profession by reason of their outstanding ability and natural forte for the work. Thus we find that none of the born journalists have anything to do with newspapers and that these are produced by a set of incompetent scribbles who cannot earn an existence in any other line.

The infallibility of newspapers has become almost a byword nowadays. People say: Well it's in the papers, so it must be true. That is all very well, but we wonder if the public ever realise to what measures we had to go to gain this reputation of integrity.

Have they heard of the reporter who inadvertently said that three instead of two men were shot, and was then instructed by the News Editor to go out and make the story correct?

Or the paper which, after being royally reprimanded for saying that a society leader had been seen walking through Soho at midnight, ran a series of specials proving that most society folk were either llars or somnambulists.

It is this spirit of enterprise which has got the newspaper on to the breakfast table of every healthy scandal seeker in the community, the reason being that the aforesaid reader can collect a whole lot of gossip without giving anything away himself.

Of course there are people who don't like newspapers but generally their main reason for saying so is to get their views published. And then there are people who go to great pains to tell the editor how passionately devoted they are to the paper—and generally they want something kept out!

"How do you suppose I feel when someone says mother and I—look like sisters?"

GRAVE ANTI-FASCIST RIOTS THROUGHOUT FRANCE

BRITAIN WANTS 22 MORE CRUISERS

DEMAND IN NAVAL CONVERSATIONS

AMERICA URGES POSTPONEMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic News, 25, 1934.)

Washington, June 24. American opinion that a 1935 naval conference would be a disastrous failure appears to be crystallised in influential quarters.

It is alleged that Britain is demanding a huge increase in the number of cruisers allotted her for policing Empire trade routes. Japan demands parity and nothing short of parity. European political manoeuvring now threatens to become an important factor, with Russia and France linked up together on the one side and Germany and Italy on the other.

HUBBARD INTERVIEW.

Mr. Nathaniel Hubbard, the retiring President of the American Navy League, in an exclusive interview to-day with the United Press, declared: "Neither political nor economic conditions at the present time favour the holding of the 1935 naval conference. The objectives of every naval power, with the exception of the United States, is to increase instead of decrease their national naval defence."

"In the interest of world peace and the future of naval armaments limitations, it is hoped that the preliminary conversations recently opened in London may develop into such a situation that it will induce the naval powers to effect an adjournment of the 1935 naval conference to a more propitious time."

STATUS QUO.

"In the meantime," said Mr. Hubbard, "the nations would have to agree upon maintaining the status quo under the Washington and London Treaties."

It is pointed out that the 1935 Naval Conference was arranged five years ago, when it was impossible to foresee either the world trade collapse or the political stresses of the present day. Postponement in the circumstances, especially as it can be foreseen that an agreement without all-round increases is impossible, is the obvious course.

BRITISH CRUISER NEEDS.

Mr. Hubbard disclosed that the British Admiralty is making a claim for an increase in the number of first-class cruisers allotted to her from 50 to 72, this latter figure being submitted as the minimum necessary for adequately carrying out the tasks of the British Navy.

This demand, said Mr. Hubbard, together with the Japanese parity demand, and the French and Italian battleship and battle cruiser construction programmes eliminate the possibility of substantial sacrifices.

NEW PROBLEMS.

He also foreshadowed a French demand for Russian participation in the 1935 conference and an Italian demand for German participation, both of which would increase the obvious difficulties.

SHUNTIAN PIRATE GANG

STILL ELUDE THE CHINESE FORCES

Shanghai, June 24. Attempts to round up the "Shuntien" pirates or force them to surrender the Chinese hostilities have been unsuccessful in spite of continued pressure by military and naval forces.

To-day, a large party of Chinese marines landed at the mouth of the Yellow River and thoroughly combed the coast with an aeroplane from a Chinese cruiser guiding their movements.

Another attempt will be made to-morrow.—Central News.

DONOGHUE WINS GRAND PRIX

RIDES ADMIRAL DRAKE TO VICTORY

EASTON BEATEN INTO THIRD PLACE

Paris, June 24. Steve Donoghue, veteran jockey of the English Turf, rode M. Leon Volterra's Admiral Drake to victory in the French Grand Prix to-day.

Race-goers were undisturbed by the serious riots of Saturday and there was an enormous crowd at Longchamps racecourse to see the race, the French counterpart of the Derby.

Admiral Drake's victory was a brilliant performance, although it was hardly expected as the horse finished last in the Epsom Derby. He proved his ability to stay, however, and over the longer distance (the Grand Prix is over 1 mile, 7 furlongs) he came through with a rush and won comfortably.

EASTON THIRD.

Foulambin was second, and Lord Woolavington's Easton, ridden by Gordon Richards, which finished second in the Two Thousand Guineas and second in the Derby, occupied third place to-day.

Seventeen ran. Admiral Drake won by a length and a half, the same distance separating second and third.

The pari-mutuel betting to a five-franc stake was: Admiral Drake, Fr. 29.50 win; Fr. 21.50 place; Foulambin, Fr. 53.50 place; Easton, Fr. 10.50 place.—Reuter.

DANASCOT HAS A ROUGH TRIP

RETURN TO SHANGHAI FROM NAGASAKI

Shanghai, June 24. The Shanghai yacht, Danascot, arrived back from Nagasaki last night after a rough passage which occupied five days.

Captain Jorgensen stated that he was very tired after continuously being at helm in strongly running seas. He would have arrived earlier but the fates and the weather were against him and his companion.

They were becalmed for some time and to make matters worse, their auxiliary engine gave trouble.—Reuter.

The Very Rev. Dean A. Swann who has been indisposed for a few days, is making good progress, and is expected to return to duty this week. He has not found it necessary to go to hospital, but is being nursed at home.

"He went there to play with the Indian Policemen," stated Inspector Hourihan, when Chan Tim was charged before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with trespassing within the grounds of the West Point Police Station.

Three others, Ng Mau, Li Kin-fuk and Lau Yat-sing, were also charged, but they stated they had gone to watch Chan Tim play. In answer to the charge, Chan Tim stated he had gone there to play. Mr. Hamilton fined him $2, and bound the other three defendants over in $5 each.

LORIENT BATTLE

FURIOUS MOB CHARGES MOUNTED POLICE

SITUATION OUT OF CONTROL

Paris, June 24. Increasing tension between the Fascist organisations and the anti-Fascists in France was illustrated by a series of riots during the week-end in various parts of France.

In nearly every case, the disturbances were the result of attempts to break up meetings organised by the Fascist groups and many heads were split in clashes with the police.

The most serious of a score of riotous episodes occurred at Lorient, one of the coast ports in Brittany, where over a hundred were seriously injured in a wild day of fighting.

PITCHED BATTLE.

Most of the casualties occurred in a pitched battle between a mob, numbering well over two thousand, and the mounted police. The mob reversed the usual roles and charged the police, attacking them with poles, stones and bottles.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed in the ensuing battle. Cane chairs were seized and smashed over the heads of opponents and when the fire brigade's assistance was sought in an effort to damp the ardour of the mob, the crowds ripped the hoses to shreds.

CINEMA WRECKED.

They then invaded a cinema where the Croix de Feu, an ex-Servicemen's organisation with Fascist tendencies, was holding a meeting and brought the gathering to an abrupt termination. The cinema was completely wrecked when the combatants had been dispersed.

A prominent Trades Unionist was arrested brandishing a sword which he had seized from a wounded lieutenant of the Guards Mobile.

One policeman had his eye gouged out and twenty-eight other policemen were seriously injured.—Reuter.

The Chinese Chamber of Commerce has presented a petition asking the abolition of twelve miscellaneous taxes, including the special tax on cattle.

In the evening, the Finance Minister discussed various problems with General Ho Ying-ching and other members of the Political Commission.

One case of typhoid was reported to the health authorities on Friday.

The P. and O. liner Ranchi is due here from Singapore with the English mails at 6 a.m. on Wednesday.

The speaker at to-morrow's meeting of the Rotary Club will be Mr. Weighman, who will take as his subject "Some Animal Diseases: Their Control and Treatment."

Inspector Stinson made an application for confiscation of 60 packages of salt which he found on board the steamer On Lee on June 22 before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning. The salt was not claimed by anyone and was not put on the manifest. Mr. Hamilton granted the application.

Private Thomas Henry Constantino, of the South Wales Borderers, who was recently court-martialled for stealing two photographs and two pieces of glass from a stall at the upper terminus of the Peak Tramway, was sentenced by the Court to 60 days' detention. COAL BUNKERING

A prosecution against Capt. J. Beck, master of the China Navigation Company's steamer Hunan, who was summoned, before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, under the Piracy Prevention Regulations, for sailing at a time not previously approved by the Hon. I.G.P. on June 1, was dismissed.

It was alleged that the Hunan left the harbour at 6.15 p.m. instead of at 4 p.m. as defendant had previously notified.

Defendant said the ship's departure was delayed because the coolies who were working the bunkers took a long time over their job.

Sergeant Baker said he was on board the ship at 2 p.m. and after he had conducted a search, defendant told him, at 3.50 p.m., that the ship would not sail until 6 p.m. Sergeant Baker pointed out that after searching the ship his duty was to remain on board until she left.

COAL NOT LOADED.

His Worship (to defendant):—Were you in a position to say at 2 p.m. that the ship could not sail until 6.15 p.m.

Defendant:—No, sir. We had to load 125 tons of bunker, and the coolies should have finished at 2.30 or at the latest 3 p.m. But actually they took from 12.15 to 6.15.

Defendant further explained that everything else was ready. All the passengers were on board, the cargo had been loaded, but the most essential thing, coal, had not been loaded. His ship usually arrived from Canton in the morning and left again in the afternoon, he said. There was always a rush regarding the loading of the bunkers, but it just happened in this case that there was a slip somewhere.

His Worship:—Have you any control over the actual bunkering of the coal?

Defendant:—I give the order, and it passes on from my Chief Engineer to the Engineer Superintendent and then on to the office. The office makes the arrangements.

His Worship:—The position then is this: You order the coal and the Company makes some arrangement outside of your control?—Yes.

His Worship:—It seems to me that Capt. Beck is not responsible in this case. I'll discharge him. Inspector Rozeksky:—Your Worship, Capt. Beck has received warnings from the police about this type of offence. We issue warnings before we take out summonses.

COMPANY'S FAULT.

His Worship:—But I still can't see how he can be held responsible for the delay in the bunkering. It is the Company's fault. Inspector Rozeksky:—Still, he can be held responsible. He represents the Company.

His Worship:—The essence of his defence is that he was bunkering. He admits that if it was a question of cargo, he would have been responsible, but he cannot go to sea without coal.

Inspector Rozeksky:—But he could have given the police sufficient notice.

Defendant:—I did not know I could not sail at the notified hour until 3.50. It would have taken me half an hour to go ashore, half an hour to notify everybody of the delay, and another half an hour for me to get back to the ship. By that time the ship would have been ready to sail.

His Worship:—Yes. I am inclined to accept defendant's excuse in this case, on the ground that he could not sail without coal.

Inspector Rozeksky:—Your Worship, they could have started bunkering in the morning. Instead of waiting until the last moment.

NOT ENOUGH POLICE?

Defendant:—I admit that the police officers have a hard time searching the ships in harbour. Although they have a big staff, I still think it is not big enough to go round.

His Worship:—It is a matter which I cannot discuss with you. You are discharged. Will you report my compliments to the Company and say that I think it was their fault that the ship could not sail at the notified time in this case?

Defendant:—Yes, sir.

MONGKOK FERRY STRUGGLE

PASSENGER AND A MEMBER OF CREW

An employee aboard the Mongkok ferry launch, Man Chee, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen this morning for assaulting Hung Shu, a cook.

S. I. Mist said that complainant travelled from Mongkok to Hongkong and seated himself in the bow. Defendant told him to move, and when asked where complainant could be seated, defendant went away and came back with a stick. An Indian watchman stopped the struggle. The defendant was fined $5 or seven days' and ordered to pay $3 to complainant.

ENGLAND'S WOMEN "HOPES" FOR WIMBLEDON

Eight of England's leading women players, snapped at Wimbledon during the Wightman Cup trials. They will all be seen in action at Wimbledon this week, and from them may possibly come the new champion. The players are, reading from left to right: Miss D. Round, Miss B. Nuthall, Miss M. Scriven, Mrs. L. A. Godfree, Miss N. Lyle, Mrs. E. F. Whittington, Miss M. Healey and Miss A. M. York.

WIMBLEDON OPENS THIS AFTERNOON

Gathering Of World's Most Skilled Players

IS IT TO BE FRED PERRY'S YEAR? THE WOMEN'S TITLE

Wimbledon, the magnetic tennis meeting which brings the world's finest players together for nearly a fortnight, opens to-day, and bookings show that once again attendance records are likely to be shattered.

England, which has become just as much tennis-minded, as it is cricket-conscious, will flock to the All-England Lawn Tennis Club to revel in the encounters between the world's most skilled exponents of the game.

Last year they cheered a new champion when Jack Crawford of Australia beat Ellsworth Vines in a classic match. This year they hope to cheer even more vociferously, for it is generally felt that Fred Perry, England's greatest player since the days of Arthur Gore, and before him the Doherty brothers, is to make his supreme effort to win the blue ribbon of the court, and thus inscribe an Englishman's name on the roll of honour for the first time since 1909.

The critics have unanimously averred that this is Perry's year. Perry has done everything to substantiate the belief. During the past twelve months he has won the American and Australian championships, beating Crawford on both occasions, and played the leading part in the winning of the Davis Cup for Britain.

KEENER THAN EVER.

The competition, even without such personalities as Vines,

Cochet and Satoh, is keener than before. France is sending her young men, the future Cochet and Borotra; America will be represented by a magnificent team; Germany contributes Von Cramm, recent conqueror of Crawford in the French championship; Czechoslovakia has Menzel; Australia has Crawford and McGrath as chief banner-bearers.

The world's greatest tennis meeting is being attended by as fine a galaxy of international players as at any time in its history.

Among the women added interest is lent by the fact that circumstances demand a new champion. Mrs. Wills Moody is unable to defend her title. Miss Helen Jacobs is her most likely successor, but British hopes are faithfully pinned on Miss Dorothy Round, Miss Scriven and other leading players. The French and German challenge is powerful. Madame Mathieu has her place among the "seeded," and Fraulein Aussem, although not yet completely recovered from her illness of last year, is a dangerous opponent.

Wimbledon of 1934 is to be as glamorous as ever.

TOTE MADE £4,400,000 LAST YEAR

FIGURES REACH NEW RECORD

London. The report of the Racecourse Betting Control Board, covering the operation of the totallator during 1933, has been presented to the Home Secretary.

The report will disclose a substantial improvement in the financial position of the board. During 1933 the turnover of the tote reached the record figure of £4,400,000, an increase of £400,000 as compared with 1932.

The machine is now, since the erection of totalizer buildings at Goodwood, in operation on every race course in the country except Doncaster, and it is believed that one will be erected there soon.

In addition to the services on race courses proper, the board provide facilities at all the principal point-to-point and hunt meetings.

Litigation recently took place concerning the legality of the system under which bets are received on credit by agents and transmitted to the race course by them.

OFF-COURSE BETS.

Judgment on this issue was given in favour of the board, who intend to continue and develop this method of accepting bets.

This "off-course" business, increased greatly in volume during 1933, and it now forms a large proportion of the tote wagers made.

The report for 1932 recorded a net profit, after payment of interest on borrowed capital, of only about £19,000.

It will be found that the accounts now about to be issued disclose not only a big increase of that figure, but also that the board have been able to clear off the deficit from previous years.

In addition to the development of their undertaking, the board have devoted much attention during recent months to necessary reorganization. Valuable economies in methods of working have been effected, and the removal of the administrative headquarters to less costly premises has been arranged.

FOUGHT TO KEEP A RECORD CLEAN

Shower Of Stones Repels Winning Team

Belgrade. The football team of Milosevatz, a small town in Yugoslavia, has never been beaten. This proud record is defended by every possible means. A hail of stones has just saved it from disaster.

The visiting team were winning 2-0. It looked as if the record was to be broken. But a penalty kick decision provided the home side with the opportunity for a diversion. They started a free fight.

They hurled huge stones from a handy pile at their opponents and with shouts of encouragement a crowd of home supporters joined them in the fight.

Only the efforts of the police and some of the older citizens prevented the visiting team from suffering fatal losses. Several of them were seriously injured.

THE GOLF COURSES.

SIX HOLES FOR PLAY AT DEEP WATER BAY.

Col. E. D. Matthews, Secretary of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club announces that as a result of the conditions of the courses following last week's rains, the Happy Valley course will remain closed until at least Wednesday of this week, but that six holes at Deep Water Bay will be open this afternoon.

NEW ARSENAL MANAGER

Mr. Allison On His Plans

Mr. George F. Allison, the well-known commentator on sporting events for the B.C.C., has accepted the post of manager to Arsenal F.C., and takes over his new duties immediately.

Mr. Allison, who succeeds the late Mr. Herbert Chapman, is married and has a daughter of 16. He is a journalist and a director of newspaper and cinema-theatre companies. During his active football days he played full-back for the Casuals. He states that he does not propose to give up broadcasting and writing.

Associated with Middlesbrough F.C. in 1905 and 1906, Mr. Allison in the latter year came to London from Tees-side and became keenly interested in Arsenal.

PROGRESSIVE POLICY.

"I intend to continue the progressive policy of Arsenal," Mr. Allison said in an interview. "Regarding the payment of big fees we shall be guided by the contingencies of the moment, but Arsenal have a very high position to maintain and we intend to maintain it."

"I am happy in the knowledge that no man could be supported by a more loyal band of players and directors, and I am looking forward to an even more intimate association with the club as manager than before."

The new record was made in the presence of 35,000 spectators.—Reuter. The previous world's record was held by Z. Helasz, of Poland, who established a mark of 52 ft. 7 1/2 ins. in 1932.

The fourth record fell in a field event when Torrance put the shot 54 feet 0 1/16 inches.—Reuter.

TENNIS PROGRAMME

LEAGUE MATCHES THIS WEEK

K.C.C. PAY VISIT TO C.R.C.

(By "Veritas").

Kowloon Cricket Club face their biggest proposition to date in the "A" Division of the tennis league to-morrow, when they visit Causeway Bay to engage the Chinese Recreation Club first string.

The C.R.C., undefeated as yet, are warm favourites for the retention of the title won last summer, and the K.C.C. will have to improve on some recent form if they are to boast the achievement of being the first team to lower the champions' colours this year.

The odds are in favour of the home team, who are decidedly better balanced. Much will depend on the success or failure of the Fincher combination, and whether Grose and Guest and Hyde and Rodger can hold their own.

A second match is being played on the same ground, the C.R.C. second string engaging Craigengower. This fixture is of more than passing interest, and affords Craigengower a chance of showing their real worth.

Without Duff, the Hongkong Cricket Club will find it hard to resist the challenge of the I.R.C., and will probably lose. South China seem to be safe for points from the U.S.R.C. The Recoelo will only have to play normal tennis to overcome the C.R.C., third team.

THURSDAY'S GAME.

Thursday finds the C.R.C. and K.C.C. clashing again with a match between the "B" Division teams at Causeway Bay. The K.C.C. will be the inclusion of Zimmer. At their best the peninsula players have a reasonable chance of winning, but to date there has been an absence of steadiness sufficient to carry the day against such a team as the C.R.C.

University, Recoelo and Graduates appear to be certain winners.

Apart from the Recoelo's match with the K.C.C., there is nothing very exciting promised in the "C" Division programme on Friday. This encounter will decide whether the Cricket Club are to have any continued interest in the destination of the championship. They are on their own courts, but they will have to play better than against the Kowloon Bowling Green if they are to take points from the doughy Recoelo.

The full programme for the week follows.

S. A. CRICKET STAR'S SERIOUS INJURY.

Johannesburg. Fears that Bob Cattell, South African international cricketer, may never be seen on the cricket field again, are entertained as a result of an accident which befell him while working underground. He is at present confined to the Springs Nursing Home. Cattell has had several mishaps recently, but his latest injury, sustained while at work underground, where he received a splinter below the kneecap, has been most serious and blood poisoning led to two operations on the knee. It is now feared that he will be left with a stiff leg.

MRS. WILSON DOUBTFUL STARTER

K.C.C. LINE-UP ANNOUNCED

TITLE RESTS ON RESULT

BODIKER WITH MISS GRIFFITHS

(By "Veritas").

Although it will not be known definitely until after tiffin whether Mrs. Wilson can play for the K.C.C. in the all-important mixed doubles league match against the U.S.R.C., this afternoon, the K.C.C. are confidently expecting that all will be well.

Mrs. Wilson is essential to the success of the K.C.C. and it is to be hoped that her slight indisposition will not prevent her from playing.

The K.C.C. have finally decided on the composition of the team, which is:

E. C. Fincher and Mrs. Wilson.
G. Bodiker and Miss Griffiths.
A. E. P. Guest and Mrs. Miller.

Bodiker put in some practice with his partner at the club yesterday, and as a combination they shaped well, giving rise to the belief that they may be capable of winning two sets.

Incidentally the K.C.C. very nearly lost Teddy Fincher for to-day. He offered himself for a blood transfusion yesterday, but was not called upon to make the sacrifice.

DECIDES CHAMPIONSHIP. This afternoon's match will decide whether the United Services win the mixed doubles championship outright, or whether the K.C.C. will be given a chance of challenging them in a replay for the title.

The Services require half a point for the honours. The K.C.C. must beat them and win their remaining games against the L.R.C. to ensure a final chance of winning the title.

The other match to-day is between the Chinese Recreation Club and Ladies R.C. A division of the spoils is likely, although the Chinese may just match a win, playing on their own courts.

HOW KENT AMASSED A RECORD SCORE

ALL DAY PACE OF 100 RUNS AN HOUR

ASHDOWN SMASHES COUNTY'S INDIVIDUAL RECORDS

Kent recently established a new record in first class cricket by piling up the huge score of 803 for 4 wickets declared against Essex. On the first day's play they actually scored 622 runs, and the following description of this achievement is given by Frank Thorogood in the News-Chronicle.

Runs flowed in mighty volume yesterday from the lordly bats of Kent. Four roared like a torrent down the clean-shaven grass, and at one period the distracted captain of Essex had serious thoughts of calling out the fire brigade. When play closed and William Ashdown, still unbeaten, had made the highest score of his life with 307, Kent's gigantic total had exceeded by two runs the number registered against Essex at Tonbridge in 1922.

The day began with a partnership of 70 for the first wicket—and then came the deluge. Nothing, it seemed, but a good workmanlike hose could have driven Woolley and Ashdown out of their paradise, but the honour of breaking up a great alliance which produced 362 for the second wicket in a little over three hours fell to Claude Ashton.

Before Essex attained to first-class rank Brentwood had been their headquarters until round about the middle eighties; but yesterday marked the first match in the county championship ever played on that ground.

Well, the event has happened now with a vengeance, and no man can say that the Kent team are not encouraging Essex in their decision to leave Leyton and carry the old banner all round the county.

In the opinion of the Essex men, however, there is a limit to encouragement even when it comes from a neighbouring county, and it was rumoured last evening that the home captain would seek an injunction against Kent for exceeding the speed limit.

A TRAGEDY FOR ESSEX.

Woolley and Ashdown, feeling quite at home in a beautiful tented and tree-girt meadow, scored at the rate of 100 runs per hour, and the tragedy for Essex was that Eastman could not bowl because of a damaged shoulder.

Apart from that handicap, however, Essex missed vital chances during the big partnership, and the first one, had it been accepted, would have turned the whole current of the game.

This occurred when Woolley, having scored two runs, was missed at deep square leg by Cutmore. Owing to the accident which he received when batting at Trent Bridge on the previous day, Cutmore wore a plaster just above the eyes, and his vision may have been conceivably impaired. The full score was then 85, and the suffering bowler Raymond Smith.

Not long before tea, and in the course of two overs, Woolley, then in the 140's, offered unaccepted chances off Peter Smith to Nichols and Pope in the long field. Later on in the day Ames, with his score at 30, was missed by Eastman at extra mid-off.

To use the words of old Tom Emmett, there was an epidemic on the Brentwood ground, but it wasn't catching.

Employing every stroke on the board, and especially the late cut, which now and again resembled a chop, Woolley hit a 6 at the expense of Cutmore and twenty-one 4's. It was his second century of the season following 121 against Somerset and the 127th of his career.

Ashdown, who was born at Bromley, not only played a great innings mainly eloquent of the off-drive and the leg hit, but exceeded the biggest innings ever made for Kent.

Until yesterday Ames held that distinction with 295 against Gloucestershire at Folkestone last year; but

BOXER FALLS OUT OF THE RING

Jack Moody's Plunge To Floor After K.O.

Surprised by a pile-driving punch from his groggy opponent, Jack Moody, of West Bromwich, dropped on the boards of the Palais de Danse, Birmingham, last month, and rolled over and over until his head was over the edge of the ring staging.

A spectator grasped him momentarily—the action saved Moody from plunging head-first to the floor some feet below—but an angry shout, "Don't help him," caused the intervener to release his hold and Moody slithered down to the floor, where he lay still.

Moody was fighting Pat Butler, of Leicester. In the third round he felled the Leicester boy for a count of seven. When Butler staggered to his feet, Moody crashed him down again with a heavy right hook. The bell saved him.

Butler was awarded the decision on a technical knock out.

Results of other bouts were:—

Ten rounds: George Archer (Birmingham) defeated Jack Turvey (Birmingham); referee stopped fight in the second round. Harry Orton (Leicester) beat George Kirby (Birmingham) retired in the eighth round. Six rounds: Kid Paynton (Birmingham) k.o. Jim Cowdell (Smethwick), second round.

South China "B" eleven defeated a team from H.M.S. Phoenix by two goals to nil in a friendly football match at Caroline Hill on Saturday afternoon. South China's goal was scored by Tay Kwee-hang in the first half.

Ashdown did more by making the highest score ever put up by a Kent player the previous best being achieved by Frank Woolley—305 not out for the M.C.C. against Tasmania in the tour of 1911-12.

This was Ashdown's third century of the season and Ames reached his second in 80 minutes.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The ice-way principle—a theory introduced to contract by P. Hal Sims—is one of the most valuable instruments of the game. It is well employed in to-day's hand, which was played recently by Paul de Vries of New York City.

When Mr. de Vries in the South bid a spade, and North bid three spades, North was telling his partner that the hand was safe at four spades. However, it gave South a chance to go to three no trump, if he desired.

Now when South elected to show a new feature of his hand with his bid of four hearts, he was really making a mild claim try. And when North bid five diamonds he was saying that the hand was safe at six, as he also had a new feature in his hand.

When South went to five no trump he was practically telling North that he held the king of clubs, because he was stating that there would be some advantage in having the hand led up to; therefore, he must have at least the king and x of clubs.

When North showed the ace of clubs with a bid of six clubs, and when South re-bid six clubs, North was justified in going to seven.

The Play

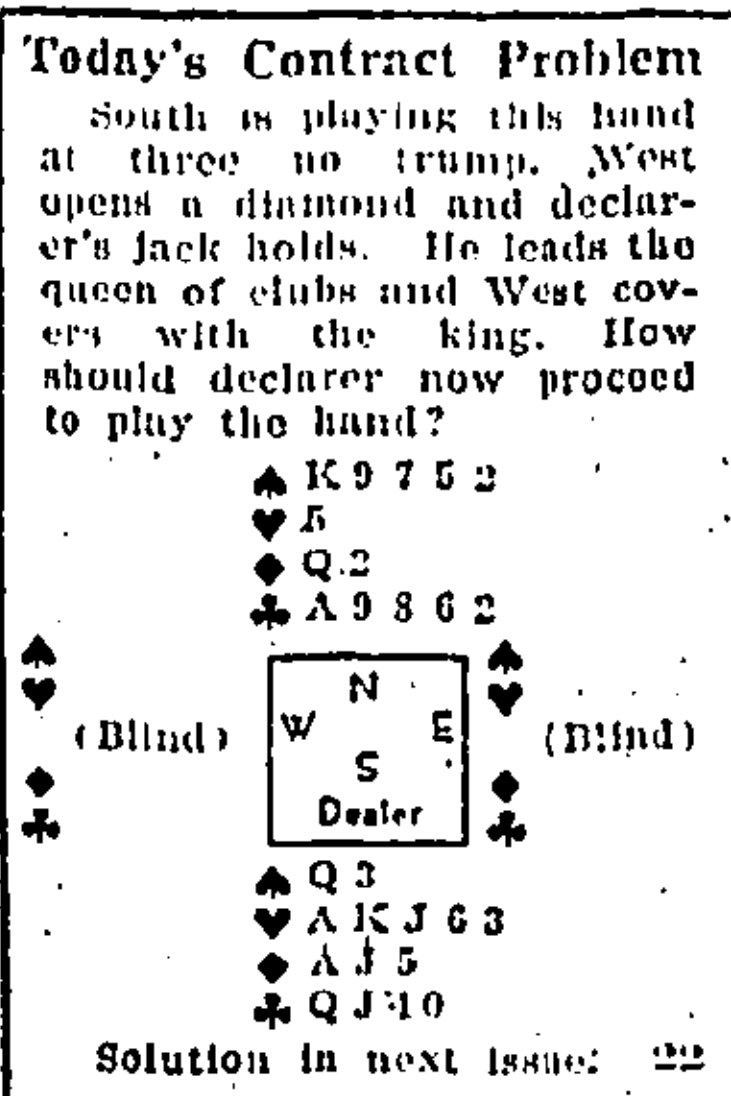

A spade opening might have defeated the contract. However, when the hand was played, the queen of clubs was opened, and Mr. de Vries in the South won with the king. South then led the ten of hearts and trumped in dummy with the deuce of spades.

A small spade was returned and won with the ace. The jack of hearts was led and trumped with the jack of spades. The seven of spades was returned, East discarding a club, and Mr. de Vries won with the king.

He then picked up the two outstanding spades and discarded two diamonds from dummy. East let go his two hearts.

Declarer then cashed ace and king of hearts, discarding a club and a diamond from dummy. On the last heart, East was squeezed. If he let go a diamond, all the declarer's diamonds would be good, so he dropped the ten of clubs.

Declarer then played the three of clubs and won in dummy with the ace, which caught East's jack.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Enchanting dances, brilliant modernistic settings of the old world cafes, the gay social whirl of Europe and the future of early war fever in Paris thrilled are shown in "Bolero," George Raft's latest starring picture, at the King's Theatre. Based on the savage rhythms of Ravel's "Bolero," Carey Wilson, Kubec Glasmon and Florence Jackson have constructed a well-nigh fool-proof plot—which has been adeptly and convincingly developed by Director Wesley Ruggles. George Raft who, to date has played tough "meaner" roles, has been keeping something from his public. Few of any ball room dancer can equal his rhythmic technique and stage presence. His "Bolero" performance as the famous Raoul, idol of London and Paris, is superb. Then there's Sally Rand with that flamboyant fan and bearing the half world stamp of the Chicago World's Fair and returned her to her first love, the movies. She has an excellent screen presence and is a competent actress. Carol Lombard, who wears slinky gowns as her modern woman with ultra-modern ideals in "Riptide" her newest photoplay which opened yesterday at the Queen's. Lavishly produced, brilliantly enacted by its star and an impressive supporting cast and bearing the directorial stamp of that ace director, Edmund Goulding, who also wrote the story, the new Shearer vehicle stands out as one of the finest productions to come from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and provides an entertainment of distinction in every phase of motion picture artistry. As Lady Rexford, in this daintily triangular Continental romance, Miss Shearer is regally superb. Never has she appeared so beautifully photographed or handsomely costumed. Her performance is nothing less than magnificent, more superb than her "Divorcee," which won her the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award in 1932. With the customary flair attached to a Shearer film the star is provided with not one leading man but two Robert Montgomery enacts the play-boy friend and Herbert Marshall is seen as the more sober-minded husband. Each delivers a superb performance. Edmund Goulding performed gallant service as both author and director and achieves a screen product of unusual merit in entertainment values. There is all the box office in the world crowded into his story and development, with Miss Shearer's characterization giving both the women and men in the audience something to thrill about. Mrs. Patrick Campbell, noted British actress, heads the impressive supporting cast as the eccentric dowager. Other important roles are in the capable hands of sterling players as Skeet Gallagher, Ralph Forbes, Arthur Jarrett, Earl Oxford, Helen Jerome Eddy, George K. Arthur, Baby Marilyn Spinnert, Phyllis Cochran, Howard Chandler Christy and Halliwell Hobbes.

"Four Frightened People"

There is one watchman who will never again fall down on a job after the scare he got while working for Cecil B. DeMille in Hawaii, during the filming of his latest Paramount picture, "Four Frightened People," which comes on Thursday to the King's Theatre. A huge Midway Island fort built in height and weighing several thousand pounds, was erected in a jungle location for exterior scenes. Before the troupe, including Claudette Colbert, Herbert Marshall, Mary Boland and William Gargan, was discovered that filming would be almost impossible there due to almost incessant rainfall in that vicinity. DeMille ordered the bulky image moved to another and dryer location, which was accomplished during the hours that the watchman was sleeping some sleep. When it came to paying off all the native help at the end of the picture, the watchman failed to show up for his money. He was finally located, but refused to accept pay without a great deal of urging. "I have a confession to make," he said after he had pocketed

The nine of clubs was played and the declarer discarded his losing diamond.

The last two tricks were won with the ace and king of diamonds.

pay. "While I was looking around the jungle, your idol was stolen. I shall start out now and find the thief." DeMille is still waiting to hear if the watchman found the idol in the new location. "Four Frightened People" is from the novel of the same name by E. Arnot-Robertson. It is the story of how four self-loving people have the veneer of civilization stripped from them when they are forced to fight for life and love in a dense, dangerous Malay jungle.

Ruth Chatterton will play a new and unusual role in her latest screen vehicle, "Female," which comes on Thursday to the Queen's. This glamorous star has had a long, unique and varied list of roles in her stage and screen career. But never before has she appeared in the guise in which "Female" will present her: an efficient big business executive at the office and a woman who has her own love code at night. It is a role peculiarly well adapted to a star who combines Miss Chatterton's gifts both as comedienne and dramatic actress.

The heroine of "Female" demands both elements. It is one of the most diverse roles which Miss Chatterton has played—hence, according to the star herself, one of the most satisfying. William Dieterle, director of the picture, has spun this daring story with great charm and delicacy. Its comedy is thrown into relief by emotional scenes of depth and intensity. A distinguished cast appears with Miss Chatterton in "Female." With George Brent as leading man, and such players as Ruth Donnelly, Lois Wilson, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Johnny Mack Brown in important roles, the star has splendid support. Others appearing in the picture are Jean Muir, Gavin Gordon, Sterling Holloway and Rafaela Ottiano. The screen play is by Gene Markey and Kathryn Scola.

"Ever in My Heart" Romance of unusual strength and interest is said to mark the plot of Barbara Stanwyck's latest Warner Bros. picture, "Ever in My Heart," which opens on Thursday at the Alhambra. In the character of a New England girl a strong friendship exists between her and a cousin and their families take it for granted that they will marry. But when the cousin returns from abroad with a German professor she immediately falls in love with the professor and weaves him in defiance of her Puritan relatives. Their love runs smoothly and beautifully until the outbreak of the World War when friends and relatives turn on the husband and later on the girl herself because she will not give him up. But they are eventually torn apart when her husband is driven to return to Germany to join the army by the snubs and snail pace of his own country. Later Stanwyck as a canteen worker in France meets her husband, as he is spying on the Allied forces. It is here that the picture turns into one of intense drama as she is torn between her love for her husband and her duty toward her own country. Otto Kruger, noted stage star, has the leading masculine role opposite Miss Stanwyck, while the remaining members of the cast are all noted on stage and screen. They include Ralph Bellamy, Ruth Donnelly, Laura Hope Crews, Frank Albertson, Donald Meek, Clara Blandick, Elizabeth Patterson and Harry Beresford. Archie Mayo directed the picture from a screen play by Bertram Milhauser which is based on the story by himself and Beulah Marie Dix.

AMERICAN FAILS TO REGISTER

FIRST CASE UNDER NEW LAW

Glen Avrian Smith, an American, was fined $10 by Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning for having failed to report to the police authorities for registration, being an alien.

Smith arrived on the President
Hoover on June 10.

Sub-Inspector Noloth said that all shipping companies and hotels had been supplied with notices informing them that aliens should register when they arrived in Hongkong. Defendant had been visiting Hongkong off and on for the last three years. Defendant had not bothered to look at these notices. The onus was not on the hotels or boarding houses to report, but on the aliens themselves.
Smith pleaded guilty, and said he had had no notice of the necessity for registration.

CONVERSATIONS IN WASHINGTON

SAITO VISITING TOKYO

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1934. Received June 25, 7.55 a.m.)

Washington, June 24.
The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Saito, is leaving for Tokyo on Tuesday.

It is understood that he will spend the entire summer in Japan, planning a "come-back" for friendship between Japan and the United States.

It is expected that he will have consultations with Mr. Hirota,
Foreign Minister, and Prince
Saionji, and possibly with the Emperor.

Mr. Saito has been giving a close study to the Washington situation in the last month and has had several long talks with
Mr. Cordell Hull and President Roosevelt.

SOUNDING OPINIONS.

It is understood that he has been informally sounding opinion regarding possible Japanese proposals for cementing good relations, including, firstly, a non-aggression pact, secondly, a declaration of goodwill and non-competition based upon some sort of trade understanding, and thirdly, a settlement in regard to the status of Manchukuo, the independence of the Philippines and relations with China.

It is felt that if political problems are adjusted, the naval
